TEWKSBURY/WILMINGTON - Residents met with Robert Varney, the Regional Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), last week and took a tour of Rocco's Dump in South Tewksbury that was hosted by the Tewksbury Organization Against Illness and Contamination (TOXIC). The meeting was held in response to TOXIC's concerns in regard to the length of time that it has taken to begin the investigation and the clean-up.

Last legal file in town counsel transition accounted for

By STEPHEN BJORK
WILMINGTON - Town Counsel Paul DeRensis now has all of the town's legal files in his possession. Last week, DeRensis and Town Manager Michael Cairra agreed that the transition between the offices of former Town Counsel Michael Newhouse and DeRensis was complete. The agreement brought to an end a controversy during which DeRensis sought 38 legal files from the town that he charged had not been delivered to him by Newhouse.

Newhouse denied having the files in question. He was, however, able to compile summaries of each of the cases and deliver them to DeRensis last month. As of last week, all but

Kennedy to resign from WCTV

Executive Director wants to focus on family

By SHAWN P. SULLIVAN
WILMINGTON - The front line of free speech in town will soon lose a dedicated leader when Ruth Kennedy resigns as executive director of

Wilmington Community Television (WCTV) in October. Kennedy, who joined WCTV in 1995, and her husband are expecting their second child in January, and the two have decided that family must come first. The Kennedys live in North Reading.

"Being a working mom is very hard," Kennedy says. "I've done it for three years since my daughter was born. Now I'd like to try being a stay-at-home mom and see how that goes." She'll be missed. During the past eight years, Kennedy and her staff have increased the membership at the station, its number of hours of programming, its usage of available equipment, and its profile with the channel-surfing public.

"Folks see WCTV as a way to get their message out to the community," Kennedy says. "That is what WCTV is all about."

Kennedy arrived at WCTV from SATV in Salem, Massachusetts, where she was the Training and Production Coordinator for one year. Prior to SATV, Kennedy spent three years as the program director at Wakefield Community Access TV. She kicked off her career in television with a degree in Communication/Media, with a specialty of TV production, from Fitchburg State College.

Kennedy considers the increase of the public's use of WCTV to be her proudest accomplishment. When she started as executive director in 1995, WCTV had a dedicated, but small, group of members who produced the bulk of the station's programming. According to Kennedy, residents knew little as to what their local access station was about.

"Many people really thought that WCTV was just some sort

Whispering Pines confronted with drainage, traffic concerns

By STEPHEN BJORK
WILMINGTON - Once again, Whispering Pines is facing thundering opposition. The development, which the Board of Selectmen approved with a 3 to 2 vote in February, will be built near Salem Street in North Wilmington. During a meeting of the Board of Appeals on Monday, September 15, the developers of Whispering Pines heard from residents who fear that the dozens of age-restricted condominiums will make matters worse for traffic and drainage in the area.

Whispering Pines is being developed by Northeastern Development under a Local Initiative Project (LIP). The project intends to build 48 Over 55 age-restricted condominiums and includes two 24-unit buildings with as much as 30 percent of the units allocated for affordable housing.

Attendance supervisors appointed

Officers Bruce, Fiore will take on truancy

By MEDAY OUELLETTE
WILMINGTON - Considering playing hooky from school? You might want to think twice about that. The Wilmington School Committee has approved a request by Deputy Police Chief Robert Spencer to appoint two school resource officers as supervisors of attendance.

As defined by the state, a "supervisor of attendance" has the authority to apprehend and take to school any child who is truant. Such a supervisor is also required to investigate all cases in which a child in the district fails to attend school.

Officers Chip Bruce and Anthony Fiore, both of the Wilmington Police Department, have been appointed to the positions. Bruce, who is the school resource officer at the Wilmington Middle School, says his job calls for him to teach students, provide informal counseling, and enforce the law. Specifically, Bruce teaches the middle schoolers about the dangers of drugs and alcohol, the Bill of Rights, and the rights of students as provided by the law.

Currently, Bruce and Fiore are involved in their second year of the School Tardiness and Attendance Review Teams (START) Program, which is a collaborative effort that involves representatives of the local school system and police department, the Middlesex Partnerships for Youth, the Department of Social Services (DSS), and the Middlesex Juvenile Court's Department of Probation. The goal of START is to design a plan that will lead to improved attendance at school. A secondary goal of START seeks to ultimately avoid having matters escalate to a point at which the services of the juvenile court and DSS are needed.

ONE BOOK, ONE COMMUNITY. Lisa Crispin, left, collects a ticket from Wilmington Memorial Library Director Tina Stewart, right, that will enable her to vote for one of the three books that rank as finalists in a program called Wilmington Reads: One Book, One Community. The program will provide residents with an opportunity to select one book for everyone to read and discuss in the months ahead. (Denise Blair photo)

And then there were three

A trio of best sellers make the cut for Wilmington Reads

By SHAWN P. SULLIVAN

WILMINGTON - A classic, a crowd pleaser, and a critical darling.

Those are three ways to describe each of the three books that will face a vote by page-turners throughout the community who will choose the inaugural story for "Wilmington Reads: One Book, One Community."

"One Book, One Community" is a program, sponsored by the Wilmington Memorial Library, that has provided residents with an opportunity since early August to submit the title of a book that they would like to see the town band together and read. Voters had until earlier this month to make their choices known by filling out nomination forms that were available at various locations throughout town. Once that deadline passed, the Wilmington Reads Committee had to pare down to three finalists a list of as many as 150 books that were nominated.

The contenders? A tomboy, a horse, and Mainer.

Specifically, "To Kill a Mockingbird," "Seabiscuit: An American Legend," and "Empire Falls" are the three books that are in the running.

If you haven't read these books, or seen the movies adapted from them, then perhaps you have at least heard about them. Maybe summaries of their plots will jog the memory.

"To Kill a Mockingbird" tells the story of Scout Finch, a girl in a quiet Alabama town who, along with her brother, Jem, learns lessons of love, tolerance and decency when her father, an attorney named Atticus, defends a black man accused of raping a white woman. The Pulitzer Prize winning book is the only one to be written by Harper Lee, who, humbly, never considered her masterpiece to be anything more than a simple love story between a single father and his two children. "Mockingbird," which is frequently taught in literature classes in school, was made into a classic film with Gregory Peck in 1962.

"Seabiscuit" will ring a bell with anyone who has taken a trip to the movies this summer. The book, which was written by Laura Hillenbrand, tells the story of a small, down-on-his-luck horse who finds himself in the lead of many races in the 1930s, thanks to three down-on-their-luck men who gave the little equine a chance and needed a little salvation themselves. The unlikely triumvirate includes Charles Howard, an automobile baron whose spirit is shaken by the death of his son, Tom Smith, a trainer with a near-mystical gift for brining out the best in troubled horses, and Red Pollard, a poor jockey separated from his family by the Great Depression. "Seabiscuit" was a finalist in the 2001 National Book Critics Circle Awards. Amazon.com also hailed the novel as the best one of 2001. "Seabiscuit," the motion picture, is currently continuing a successful run in theaters that began in July.

"Empire Falls," by Richard Russo, invites you to visit a small, struggling town in Maine that is the home to generations of has-beens who are stuck between unimpressive pasts and futures with very little promise. "Falls," which won the Pulitzer Prize in 2002, focuses primarily on Miles Roby, who owns a local greasy spoon, and his daughter, Tick, who seems destined to follow in her father's footsteps. Filming recently began on a production of the film in Skowhegan, Maine. The movie, which will air on HBO, stars Paul Newman and Helen Hunt.

The winning book will be announced on October 13. From there, multiple copies of the winner will be available for residents at the Wilmington Memorial Library. Readers will spend the cold, wintry months of January and February enjoying the book.

Once finished, readers within Wilmington will collectively discuss the book. Live discussions will broadcast on WCTV, and activities in regard to the book will be held.

There's more to "Wilmington Reads," of course, than simply taking in a good tale. According to Library Director Tina Stewart, the program will foster literacy and bring together cross sections of people in the community who may not have the chance to cross paths often. The program is funded by a federal grant of $7,500 that was secured by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners from the Library Services Technology Act.

There are three locations at which you can cast your vote for the book of your choice. You can hop online on the Internet and surf over to www.wilmlibrary.org. If you're a student at Wilmington High School, you can swing by the library there and drop your pick in a ballot box.

Lastly, you can visit the Wilmington Memorial Library and vote for your choice like you used to vote for selectmen and presidents. One of the voting machines that are no longer being used for elections in town has been set up at the library, curtain and all.

Votes can be cast between now and Friday, October 10. The winning novel will be announced on Monday, October 13.

Whether it's the little girl from the south, the odds-beating horse, or those downtrodden Mainers, a winner is sure to be picked.

"All of these books are worthy of discussion," Stewart says. "All are books that people would enjoy reading and talking about."

CONVERT YOUR IRA?

There is an advantage to a severely diminished retirement account, if you know where to look. It will cost a lot less in taxes to convert that IRA to a Roth. Once the money is safely in a Roth, it can grow tax-free for as long as you want. Unless you want to, you never have to take annual distributions. You can even pass the Roth funds on to your heirs tax-free.

Can you do it? To qualify for a Roth, adjusted gross income must not be more than $100,000—whether single or married—and, if you're married, you must file jointly. It's most advantageous if you can pay the tax without dipping further into retirement savings. Keep in mind that you want to keep that money in place for a while (the gains can't be touched tax-free for five years).

And there's a fail-safe. If you do convert and the value of the account continues to drop, you can "re-characterize" your Roth back into a traditional IRA and even get back the taxes paid.

What's the tax-savvy way to save for retirement? Discuss your situation with the tax people at

"Poll" Position

It's tempting to let it go, really. It has, after all, been one week since Chairman Michael McCoy tried to alter, um, amend the minutes of the June 11 meeting of the Board of Selectmen. The Town Crier chose not to comment on the matter in last week's opinion section because that page had the second anniversary of the terrorist attacks of September 11 as its theme.

On pure principle, though, let's get it on record this week: McCoy's attempt to amend those minutes by changing the word "poll" to "notify" was a squirrely move at best.

The minutes at issue state that McCoy "polled" a majority of his colleagues on the board in regard to an agenda change that would ensure that candidates for town counsel be interviewed, not announced, at the June 11 meeting. At the September 8 selectmen meeting, McCoy insisted that he did not understand the meaning of the word "poll" and meant to say that he instead "notified" his colleagues about the agenda change.

The distinction between "poll" and "notify," which is clear to most, has become crucial to McCoy. Selectman Robert Palmer, you see, has submitted to the district attorney a complaint in which he charges that McCoy's phone calls were in violation of open meeting laws.

The board ultimately rejected McCoy's bid to change every occurrence of the word "poll" in the June 11 minutes. McCoy's plea to attach a memo to the minutes that explained his intent to use the word "notify" also went down in flames. In the end, the board approved the June 11 minutes as they had been recorded, thus securing their prompt submission to the district attorney.

Smart move. If "poll" was truly "just" one word, then McCoy would have let it be.

Never mind that McCoy insists that he meant to say "notify" when he repeatedly used a completely opposite word during meetings and interviews with the press. Let him insist. Last week, Selectman Frank West asserted that he was not solicited for a vote when McCoy called him in regard to the agenda change. That bodes well for McCoy.

Do mind, however, that McCoy tried to alter records, and, therefore, the past, and, ultimately, the evidence in a case that the Office of the District Attorney is conducting.

Word Play

That's terrific news that the School Committee has appointed Wilmington police officers Chip Bruce and Anthony Fiore as supervisors of attendance for the local schools. Now both men can have the leverage afforded to them by that title as they continue to employ their talents, skills and resources to keep kids from skipping or missing school.

Remember, though, when "supervisors of attendance" were once called truancy officers?

That was quite some time ago, certainly before the time of political correctness.

I once worked at a high school in Maine. One day, I heard one of the principal's secretaries refer to the school's "attendance maintenance coordinator." When I gave her a blank stare, she elaborated and said, quietly, "You know. A truancy officer."

In the true spirit of political correctness, "attendance maintenance coordinator" comprises of more words than the original term that was deemed socially unacceptable.

The secretary deconstructed the term "truancy officer" for me, in an effort to explain why it could no longer be used. "Truancy," I was told, is synonymous with "crime," which, when associated with the teenagers who commit it, leads to damaged self esteem. The word "officer," you see, is an intimidating term that sets up a wall between the authority and the student. Oh.

It all reminded me about the day care at which my sister once worked. One kid in her care smacked another. My sister, very calmly, told the kid, "No hitting." She was pulled aside by her supervisor and was asked not to say that again. "No" is too negative a word, she was told, and "hitting" had violent connotations. My sister was instructed to instead say "Now, now, gentle touches" whenever one kid conked another on the head with a Lincoln Log.

Sheesh.

As a society, we must be getting better versed in political correctness because, in fairness, "supervisor of attendance" does flow easier and sounds clearer than "attendance maintenance coordinator."

Keep an eye on 'em

Watch these folks at the Mills Corporation.

During a meeting in Tewksbury on Tuesday night, Elizabeth Link, of the Mills Corporation, gave two instances to the Perkins Land Study Group (PLSG) that should serve as examples as to why residents must be educated and diligent in their efforts to determine whether a Route 93 ramp and a mall should be built in the southern part of town.

First, Link explained to the group that Mills now might possibly extend the mass of its proposed mall from 750,000 square feet to 1.2 million square feet. Such an increase contradicts what one resident stated was a repeated assertion by Mills that the mall would be no larger than 750,000 square feet.

Link did say that she was encouraged by Town Manager David Cressman to consider such an expansion. Nonetheless, the possible increase is considerable enough to make residents wonder how dramatic other adjustments to the proposed mall could be.

Secondly, Link told PLSG members that the Town of Wilmington is "on board" with Mills to construct a hotel on property in North Wilmington that abuts the land on which the mall would be built. That's inaccurate.

In July, Town Manager Michael Cairra did tell selectmen that Wilmington "ought to look at" the benefits that a hotel and convention center might bring to the community. Specifically, Cairra felt that property and hotel room taxes would boost the revenue base of the town. Furthermore, Cairra suggested that a hotel would satisfy a need for such business that currently exists in Wilmington.

At best, Cairra encouraged open-mindedness. Selectmen, on the whole, reserved judgment until after Mills goes through other local channels and can return to the board with specifics.

This week, Cairra reiterated his position. He believes that a concept of a hotel could be worth supporting, provided that the project would not make a single negative impact to the town's environment and traffic.

Wilmington may be willing to work with Mills, but, contrary to what Link told Tewksbury, the town is far from "on board" with the idea of that hotel.

Be ready for when the bull pen's c

Small town government is very similar to watching a baseball game on a hot summer day.

To begin, you're excited to watch the game, and you catch a few innings but nothing happens. You fall asleep . . . and wake up, only to see that 10 runs have been scored. You try to stay awake, but you fall back to sleep again. When you wake up, it's the bottom of the ninth, bases are loaded, two outs, the score is tied, Jeter is up, and you're screaming at the TV, telling Grady to get BK Kim out of there.

To me, that's exactly what happened with the Affordable Housing Committee proposal in Tewksbury.

Approximately two years ago (first inning), the Board of Selectmen established the Affordable Housing Committee to take a look at ways to address the Affordable Housing Laws. The committee's charge was to find a way to meet the challenge of having 10 percent affordable housing units in the town as required by Chapter 40B of Massachusetts General Law. The call went out for residents to become committee members. Several people signed up for the committee. (Third inning, starting to get drowsy.) The board didn't tell the committee how to do it, but told them to come up with a plan and present it to the selectmen. After 18 months of hard work, the committee developed a plan and presented it to the selectmen.

In the meantime (fourth inning, sleep time), Town Meeting approves an article that precludes any development on over 400 acres of state-owned property. Quite simply, no affordable housing can be built on these 400 acres. Not one person complained about this article at Town Meeting. The committee takes this Town Meeting vote of "no building on state land" and identifies town-owned property that housing can be built on. It takes its plan and presents it to the Board of Selectmen. (Seventh inning and 10 runs have been scored.)

Well, now it's the ninth inning and neighborhoods are screaming about how they weren't included in the process, didn't have any information, and, more importantly, how these proposal may have a negative effect on their neighborhood. (Where were you during the first seven innings?)

Residents of these neighborhoods don't want to be perceived as a Not In My Back Yard (NIMBY) neighborhood, and scream that they are victims, that the people involved are slimy, that the committee intentionally wants to put their kids in danger. Victims? Slimy? Hurt kids? Residents who live on Bligh Street, Captains Circle, Colonial Drive, Foster Road and so on could have had their input heard but obviously decided not to take the time show up at Town Meeting or volunteer for this committee. (Somewhere in the fifth or sixth inning.)

What bothers me more than the NIMBYs from the neighborhoods was that the selectmen didn't stand behind the very committee they established. Every selectmen knew that the committee's plan was to identify town-owned land and to develop it for affordable housing. This plan was not a surprise to any of them. They left their committee out there like ex-Red Sox manager Jimmy Williams did with John "Way Back" Wasdin. They let a volunteer committee invest eighteen months of their time to develop this plan, only to turn their back on them and let them take all the heat while the selectmen pandered to the mob. (Bottom of the ninth and screaming at Grady, but he's not listening.)

So what is the selectmen's plan to address 40b? Establish another committee, let them work for 18 months and pull the rug from underneath their feet too? Sounds like the Sidewalk Committee all over again. Change the membership, but don't let them accomplish anything.

To neighborhood groups, beware of what's going on in town. The first inning of a new game is always right around the corner. Pay attention to selectmen's meetings, attend Town Meetings, and volunteer for committees. Just because you just moved into Tewksbury, doesn't mean you can't get involved.

You never know when the call to the bullpen might be coming.

Bookends

by Debra Russo

Bookends met at the Wilmington Memorial Library on Thursday, September 11 and discussed Old Men at Midnight by Chaim Potok.

Years ago, on a visit to my grandmother's house, I pulled the book The Chosen from her bookshelf. A voracious and precocious reader, I was still too young and uninformed to appreciate the significance of the words on the page. The themes of the book were then larger than my own experience: the love of fathers and sons, the nature of friendship, the call to God versus the passion for knowledge, the conflicts and abrasions by which the human heart is made human, and how, despite the tensions between youth and age, a moral heritage is passed on from one generation to another.

The Chosen was Chaim Potok's first book and its publication, in 1967, caused an immediate literary sensation. Never before had a popular novel given readers such a wise and personal view into the Orthodox and Hasidic Jewish communities as they existed in Brooklyn and the Bronx. A collection of novels, plays and other writings followed over the next 30-plus years, all exploring the confrontation of ideas and cultures in tension with one another. In a lecture Potok delivered in 1986 to an audience at the Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists in Tennessee, he said, "The novelist forces us . . . to look at what it is we are doing and urges us to think about it, to see if something can be learned or understood about ourselves and our species by observing this confrontation."

Confrontation and resolution lay at the heart of Potok's ninth novel and last published work, Old Men at Midnight, Bookends' September selection. Old Men at Midnight is actually three novellas linked by the character Ilana Davita Chandal Dinn, a young woman whom Potok uses as a device to elicit the history of the three main characters. (Readers of Potok's novels have met her as a young child in Davita's Harp, a coming-of-age novel in which Davita embraces the tradition of Jewishness her non-practicing, American Communist parents have left behind.) While not the main character, Davita's role is crucial. Potok once wrote, in the book Zebra and Other Stories (1998), a collection of short stories written for young adults, "I think losing your soul is when you can't tell a story about something that has happened to you." For these men, the horrors endured during the time of the Second World War have stunned their souls into silence. Davita, who needs their stories like food, like air, will restore them.

In "The Ark Builder," Potok

gives us the steaming humidity of the summer of 1947, in Brooklyn. Seventeen-year-old Davita, in the time between high school graduation and her first year at college, tutors English to sixteen-year-old Noah Stremin. Noah is a shy, thin, quiet boy who has come from Poland to live with his aunt's family. While meeting at Davita's house for lessons, Noah develops a friendship with her young stepsister, Rachel, and reveals his talent for drawing. Noah had used his artistic ability to assist the aged Reb Binyomin in restoring the wooden synagogue in their town of Kralov. In loving detail Noah describes the colorful flowers and vines, the urns, birds and beasts they created in celebration of the holiness of the place. It was a massive effort, but they completed it in time for Rosh Hashanah, the High Holy days. Then the German army came, burned it to the ground, and took the Jews to the forest. Noah, because he could draw, survived. Out of the 4,000 Jews in Kralov, he is the only one who did.

Now a student at Columbia University, Ilana Davita becomes the escort to guest lecturer Leon Shertov. Fifty-eight-year-old Shertov is a Soviet defector, a former KGB interrogation officer, and now speaking at colleges around the country on the Soviet psyche. He is also a Jew, and in "The War Doctor" is prodded by Ilana Davita to write down his memories of his earlier life.

Two months later she receives a package with the first of his three letters.

Shertov writes of how he became a platoon leader during World War I and was shot by his own men, Cossacks who didn't want to follow orders from a Jew. The wounded Shertov nearly loses his arm to infection, but a Jewish doctor saves it. The doctor then gives him patient forged papers, allowing him to build a new life. After the war, Shertov joins the Soviet secret police, where he becomes an expert in interrogation.

Upon Lenin's death and Trotsky's murder, Stalin comes to power in Moscow. Stalin, whom Shertov discovers has been diagnosed with "maniacal aggressive psychosis, aggravated by high blood pressure and arteriosclerosis of the brain," begins to suspect his own people are plotting against him and orders Shertov's group to obtain, however necessary, their "confessions." Shertov begins to wonder when his own time will come, though he dutifully reports to work each day.

But the vicious evil that is Stalin's madness, paranoia, and hatred of the Jews keeps growing. Thousands are arrested, deported or worse. Now Stalin suspects Jewish doctors of murdering people on the operating table and orders the great names of Soviet medicine to be rounded up for Shertov's interrogation. One of them is the doctor who saved Shertov's arm and his life.

In the last of the stories, "The Trope Teacher," an adult Davita, now the successful novelist I.D. Chandal, moves next door to distinguished professor of warfare, Benjamin Walter, who has been struggling to write his memoirs. In part, his task is slowed by his wife's illness: she acquired AIDS from the tainted blood she received during her third pregnancy. But there's a deeper problem: he has forgotten or suppressed much of his childhood.

During a business trip to Chicago, Benjamin buys a copy of I.D. Chandal's most recent book which contains stories of "Old World men with threadbare dreams entering the fearful midnight of their lives . . . all tangled in memories of the past, which come to them too late and return nothing, not an echo, not a whisper, not a hope." One of these stories concerns a former colonel of the KGB recalling his years as an interrogator and torturer. We know these stories to be true.

Over coffee and donuts, Davita probes Benjamin into recalling Mr. Zapski, the man who prepared him for his bar mitzvah. Mr. Zapski eventually decides to return to Europe to go to the university in Vienna. "This America of yours is not a country that values history. Where I was raised, history was the heart and marrow of a person. I am returning to the inside of myself that the war forced me to leave behind. Later, recalling his own experiences in World War II, Benjamin reveals how he found Mr. Zapski.

To Davita, stories are essential. "I need them. Without stories there is nothing. Stories are the world's memory. The past is erased without stories. As Benjamin's muse, Davita is young, petite, blonde and attractive; later we meet the writer I.D. Chandal, recipient and distiller of so many stories, solitary, corpulent, gray and obscene.

Chaim Potok was a master storyteller who lived deep in a culture most of us in Bookends knew little or nothing about. It seems right, somehow, that we should have discussed this book and paid tribute to its author in the month of the Jewish New Year and on the second anniversary of another unspeakable expression of hatred.

Bookends meets the first Thursday of every month, 7:00-8:30 p.m. in the conference room of the Wilmington Memorial Library. Next meeting: October 2, 2003 to discuss Longitude by Dava Sobel. All are welcome.

WPD receives Child Passenger Safety Grant

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Police Department recently received a $1,500.00 grant from the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau (GHSB) for its child passenger safety (CPS) program. The GHSB, an agency of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Public Safety, awarded 70 CPS grants totaling $116,000 to Massachusetts communities as part of its efforts to educate parents and caregivers about how to protect children through the proper use of safety belts, booster seats and child safety seats in motor vehicles.

"With this GHSB grant, the Wilmington Police Department can better help parents and caregivers protect children from motor vehicle related fatalities and injuries through the proper use of safety belts, booster seats and child safety seats," said Chief Nally. "It will also help us to get the word out that the safest place for children 12 and under is properly restrained in the back seat away from air bags."

Traffic crashes are the leading cause of death nationwide for children ages two to 14. There were nine fatalities and approximately 5,000 injuries involving children 12 and under in Massachusetts in 2001.

"Car seats, when properly installed, reduce the risk of death by 71 percent for infants and 54 percent for toddlers," said Edward A. Flynn, Secretary of Public Safety. "Unfortunately, approximately 95 percent of all child safety seats are installed incorrectly. The Romney-Healey Administration is pleased to provide this grant to the Wilmington Police Department to support its efforts to protect children by ensuring they are always properly buckled up while on the road."

Here is a summary of the Massachusetts CPS Law:

- Children under five years old and weighing 40 pounds or less must ride in a federally approved child safety seat.
- Children under five weighing more than 40 pounds must ride in a booster seat.
- Children five and older and weighing over 40 pounds must wear a properly adjusted safety belt. For maximum safety, children 40 to 80 pounds and under 4'9" should use a booster seat with a safety belt.

"This is a primary enforcement law. A police officer may stop a motor vehicle if one or more children are riding improperly restrained. A driver will be fined $25 for each improperly restrained child.

The Wilmington Police Department currently has four police officers who are Certified Child Passenger Safety Technicians. The department offers car seat inspections and installations on Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Wilmington Public Safety Building. There is no cost for this service, and appointments are not necessary.

The Wilmington Police Department wants to remind the public that the Massachusetts Safety Belt Law requires everyone to buckle up. A 2003 GHSB survey found only a 62 percent safety-belt use rate among front seat occupants of all ages in Massachusetts. "We all need to set a good example for children," said Nancy J. Luther, Executive Director of the GHSB, "because it's much harder to convince younger people to buckle up when they see so many adults are not using safety belts."

For more information on child passenger safety - including a list of child passenger safety technicians across Massachusetts - go to www.mass.gov/ghsb.

"Poppa" Belden with grandchildren Allison, Matt, baby Jacob, Nick and Jackie.

"I worried that chronic angina would keep me from being here for my grandchildren. Lowell General has given me new hope."

After two heart attacks and quintuple-bypass surgery, Philip Belden had hoped his heart troubles were over. But surgery, medication and a pacemaker couldn't relieve the chronic angina that made even walking and getting dressed extremely painful.

Philip worried that he had exhausted all options of finding relief. Then his doctor told him about the new "EECP" program at Lowell General. EECP (enhanced external counterpulsation) is a comfortable, one-hour therapy using adjustable pressure cuffs around the legs to increase blood flow to the heart and dramatically reduce angina symptoms.

For Philip Belden, this means hope for an active future without pain and discomfort, so he can focus on what really matters: spoiling his five grandchildren.

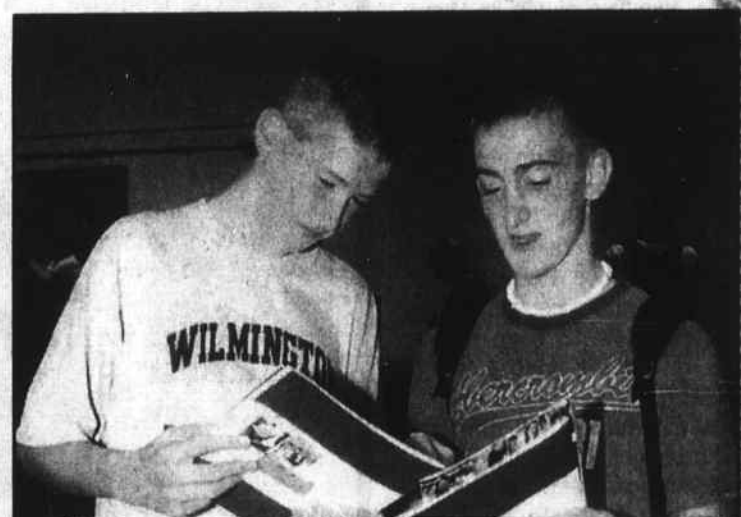

When it comes to matters of the heart, trust the cardiac team with the expertise, training and experience you need. Choose the cardiac care team at Lowell General.

To learn more about the EECP program or cardiac care for your family, call us at 978-937-6665 for a free EECP brochure. Or visit us at www.lowellgeneral.org.

Wilmington Library Notes

by Christina Stewart

Finalists selected for Wilmington Reads

The Wilmington Reads Committee has selected the following three books as finalists for the first annual Wilmington Reads 2004:

TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD by Harper Lee. Set in an Alabama town during the depression, this well known classic deals with the universal themes of courage and heroism, and love and hatred as seen through the eyes of an eight year old girl whose father risks his life to defend a black man accused of raping a white woman.

EMPIRE FALLS by Richard Russo. Winner of the Pulitzer Prize in 2002, the author creates a multigenerational story set in a Maine mill town. The cast of characters includes the controlling matriarch of the once thriving mill, the owner of the local greasy spoon and his daughter, as well as a cross section of society's misfits.

SEABISCUIT: an American Legend by Laura Hillenbrand. The author tells the story of the horse who became a Depression-era cultural icon. A finalist in the 2001 National Book Critic's Circle Awards, the book relates how three unlikely characters come together to transform an underdog into a winner.

Each title has the basis for thought provoking discussion. Residents are invited to stop by the library during the next few weeks to cast their vote in the official voting machine located in the library. Residents may also vote online at the library's website www.wilmlibrary.org. Wilmington High School students may vote at the high school library. Voting will continue until Friday October 10th.

The book that receives the highest number of votes will be the title that will be designated as the official title for this community wide reading program funded by a Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) grant. Multiple copies of the book in all formats will be purchased by the library and community wide discussions, programs and activities will begin in March, 2004.

home access to authoritative databases funded by MVL and the Northeast Massachusetts Regional Library System (NMRLS). With your library card, you can reserve books online, check your account and renew your library material.

Clean Up Thank You

Weeks of humid weather this past summer and internal condensation from HVAC system resulted in a mold outbreak on some of the books in the library's collection. The mold has been removed and these stack areas have been cleaned. The hard work of the Public Buildings staff involved HEPA vacuuming thousands of books in the affected areas. Books were then removed from the shelves, and placed on carts and tables in order to thoroughly clean the empty shelves. Library staff are reshelving all the clean books and evaluating others for withdrawal or replacement. Thank you to all the Public Buildings Department staff and library staff who were involved in working on this labor intensive clean up project. Thank you to our patrons for understanding and patience during this temporary service inconvenience.

Congregational Church to dedicate steeple

TEWKSBURY - From every direction as you drive through the center of Tewksbury, you can see high above the tree branches a beautiful new steeple that graces the top of the Tewksbury Congregational Church.

For over 85 years, parishioners dreamed of installing a steeple after the bell tower and stained glass window were destroyed in a devastating fire. The project was awarded to Northland Restoration Company, of Gardner, to install the steeple that was delivered by truck from Anderson, Texas.

In early June, many parishioners, friends and townspeople watched as the installation took place. Now that the steeple is installed and the project complete, a dedication service will be held Saturday, September 27 in the church sanctuary at 7 p.m. The dedication service is open to the community. Refreshments will follow in the church's Fellowship Hall.

Tewksbury Public Library

Book discussions available for teens

TEWKSBURY - Philip Malloy desperately wants to be on the track team, but his low grade in Miss Narwin's English class makes it impossible. He needs to dream up a scheme to annoy his teacher just enough to be transferred. Students are required to stand in respectful silence during the playing of the national anthem, so Philip decides to hum the song repeatedly. Simple enough, right? But the next thing he knows, a minor school problem turns into a major scandal.

Interested? Then come to this month's meeting of the Tewksbury Public Library's teen book discussion club. You can get together to talk about a selected book and enjoy free snacks provided by the library. In the tradition of the adult and children's discussion groups, the library is offering a club exclusively for teens. Anyone in grades 7-12 who loves to read and meet new people is welcome to join. Meetings are casual and relaxed. No signup is required, and you can go to as many or as few meetings as you like.

September's book is Nothing But the Truth by Avi. Copies of the selected book will be put aside for the club a few weeks before the date of the meeting. Stop by Tewksbury Public Library soon and ask for your copy at the Circulation Desk. Simply read it and then go prepared to share your opinions on Wednesday, September 24 at 3:30 p.m. The teen book discussion club meeting will take place in the craft room in the children's department.

Caregiver Town Hall Meeting

"Prepare to Care: From Information to Action!"

BOSTON - Family members caring for disabled or elderly relatives will have the opportunity to participate in a unique, free educational forum, the New England Family Caregiving Town Hall Meeting, on Saturday, September 20. The forum, sponsored by the National Family Caregivers Association (NFCA) and a coalition of 40 New England community organizations, will take place at the JFK Library in Boston and will feature a live, interactive webcast by which family caregivers can participate via their home personal computers or at one of nine satellite sites in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

Spearheaded by NFCA, the Town Hall Meeting, entitled - "Prepare to Care: From Information to Action!" - will provide an opportunity for family members to discuss with elected officials and business leaders the challenges they face caring for persons with serious illnesses or disabilities, whether they are young, middle aged, or old.

According to the Government Accounting Organization (GAO), over 80 percent of all home care services are provided by family caregivers. This large "unpaid" workforce significantly reduces costs in Medicare, Medicaid and private payers; however, there are few services in place to train, support and monitor the well being of the family caregiver. The Town Meeting has been designed to ensure that the concerns of the caregiving family and care recipients are addressed through a panel discussion and question and answer session.

The event is free and open to the public. Pre-registration is required. For information on registration or the locations of satellite sites, call 1-800-493-9255 and ask for the Caregiver Town Hall Meeting Coordinator - or log on to the NFCA website at www.nfcacares.org and click on Town Hall Meetings. For more information on the Town Hall Meeting contact John Paul Marosy at 508-854-0431.

Whispering Pines confronted with drainage, traffic concerns

Edward Loud recused himself from the discussion on Monday night, due to the fact that his residence will be directly affected by the project. Loud retired to the audience as a citizen. Selectmen Frank West and Suzanne Sullivan also attended the hearing, not as members of the Board of Selectmen, but as concerned citizens.

Residents disagreed with the findings of traffic engineer Dermot Kelley, asserting that the road on which Whispering Pines will be built is not equipped to handle even the traffic that currently uses it.

Residents were equally concerned about the effect of the development on the drainage in the area. Joseph Burke, an engineer hired by Whispering Pines, assured residents that measures have been taken to ensure that the project would not increase the water that run off onto neighboring properties. Members of the audience found Burke's assertion hard to swallow and stressed that their basements and the street already tend to flood without the presence of Whispering Pines.

Appeals Board member Bob Doucette suggested, more than once, that Whispering Pines should appear before the Board of Selectmen again because the make-up of the board has changed considerably since an endorsement was granted to the developers. Kristen Costa, the permitting agent for Northeastern Development, was not receptive to the idea. She acknowledged the philosophical shift in the board, but noted that the development of Whispering Pines is going to be a long process, so the board could possibly change several times more before the project is complete.

The Board of Appeals requested a peer review, to be paid for by Whispering Pines. The board will hold its next hearing on the matter on October 20, at which time Northeastern Development intends to respond to residents' concerns about Whispering Pines.

Clean-up could begin in spring of '04

of the dump, which is specifically identified as the Sutton Brook Disposal Area Superfund Site. During the meeting, the current status was provided of the assessment and efforts to rid the site of its contamination.

According to Susan Sinclair, the CEO and President of TOXIC, she and her organization have waited ten years for appropriate action to be taken at the site. Sinclair says that she is satisfied with the way the meeting with Varney went on Wednesday, September 10. She was impressed by the interest Varney showed in TOXIC's concerns, noting that the EPA administrator at one point even climbed to the top of a dirt-covered site in his polished, wing-tipped shoes.

After the site walk, Sinclair, Varney and others gathered at the South Tewksbury Fire Station and addressed several key concerns.

In 1992, TOXIC requested to Senior Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy that a fence be built around the site to discourage trespassers. Eleven years later, the fence remains on their list of requests.

"Because of the health issues we feel are associated with this landfill, we strongly believe a fence is necessary," Sinclair states.

The group also requested that a Draft Consent Order be immediately issued to those responsible for the pollution at Rocco's to force them to conduct the clean-up in a timely manner.

A Draft Consent Order is the first step towards mandating appropriate clean-up by responsible parties. More than 30 Potentially Responsible Parties (PRP's) have been identified for this site.

TOXIC had previously been informed that the Draft Consent Order was to be issued in July of this year. Residents expressed frustrations regarding the 15 years they have thus far spent fighting for this project to start.

How much longer, they wanted to know, will they have to wait?

Another request made by TOXIC calls for the relocation of resident Judy Fittery, who lives at 19 Bemis Circle. Fittery's address immediately abuts Rocco's landfill and the brook that flows through it. For more than 10 years, numerous newspaper articles, both local and regional, have documented the effects of the site's contamination on that household.

Instances of cancer have touched nearly everyone that has lived in the house, including Fittery.

The vinyl liner of the in-ground pool at 19 Bemis Circle has been disintegrated by chemicals several times.

In 1999, Fittery told radio personality and columnist Margery Eagan that she stopped growing grapes on her property because they would turn a funny color once they grew.

According to Sinclair, Varney was receptive to TOXIC's concerns. State Representative James Miceli, who was also present at the meeting, reinforced the group's message. He presented Varney with a letter from Suzanne Condon, the Assistant Commissioner of the State Department of Public Health, that highlighted the need for a fence to restrict public access to the site.

"I was pleased that TOXIC invited me to attend this meeting," Miceli states. "I have worked closely with Susan Sinclair on this issue. Her leadership in this issue has been outstanding. I am confident that Mr. Varney listened to our concerns and will do everything he can to help the community."

Since the meeting, Varney has committed to getting an agreement in place with the PRPs no later than the end of this year, so that work can begin to clean the property by the spring of 2004.

Varney stated that the requests to install the fence and relocate the Fitterys will require more discussion and research. Last Wednesday, he assured the group that he would look into all of the matters brought before him and would have additional answers by the middle of October.

TOXIC has high hopes for Varney to keep to his word. They have been battling for well over two decades.

In 1992 Senator Kennedy sat in Fittery's living room in a rocking chair, sipping coffee and promising his support.

"These toxic sites are underground Chernobyls," Fittery says Kennedy stated at the time.

In 1983, the site was inspected and documented. Finally, in 1999, the EPA Superfund Technical Assistance and Response Team (START) removed drums and contaminated soil from the site.

In 2000, the EPA distributed leaflets to residents in regard to the possibilities of contamination within private wells. Sutton Brook was named as a Superfund Site in June of 2001.

In 2003, TOXIC waits for the clean-up to begin.

"It was great having Mr. Varney take the time to visit the site and sit down and listen to the communities' concerns," says Sinclair.

Attendance supervisors appointed

Officers Bruce, Fiore will take on truancy

Deputy Spencer's proposal needed approval from the School Committee because Bruce and Fiore do not yet meet the state's prerequisites for such positions. An exemption from the state's requirements are effective for one year. The positions for Supervisors of Attendance will not be advertised because only those who have worked in local schools as officers meet the requirements to obtain such an exemption.

According to Superintendent of Schools William McAlduff, who formally presented Spencer's proposal to the committee, the appointments are a "proactive opportunity to work with parents before CHINS."

CHINS, which stands for Child in Need of Services, is a petition that may be filed in court by a supervisor of attendance of a child between the ages of six and sixteen persistently and willfully fails to attend school or consistently disrupts the learning of others. The court's authority pursuant to a CHINS petition includes the power to place a child in DSS custody.

Superintendent McAlduff noted that truancy is usually handled at schools by the principal or assistant principal; however, it is becoming more common in urban communities to appoint supervisors of attendance.

According to Project Alliance, which is a source of grant money for the START program, truancy is best targeted when students are in middle school, so that time can be taken to prepare them for their high school responsibilities.

Given their titles of Supervisors of Attendance, Bruce and Fiore will have more authority with courts when dealing with cases of truancy. The distinction will enhance their positions as school resource officers.

The School Committee approved the appointments by a vote of 4 to 2. Committee members Joan Duffy and Marilyn Lamson made the dissenting votes.

The School Committee will meet again at 7 p.m. in the library of the Wilmington High School on Wednesday, September 24.

Local residents join in Jimmy Fund Walk

WILMINGTON - This year, Cathy Beers, Deborah Birmingham, Thomas Convery, Anthony and Daniel Giamberardino, Yolanda Gomez, Jerry, Greg and Jean Irving, Dave MacPherson, Michele McGinness, John McGrath and Steve Petinge, all residents of Wilmington, will be raising funds for cancer research simply by walking. Join your neighbors in the fight against cancer by registering for the 15th annual Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk, presented by Hyundai Motor America, to be held Sunday, Sept. 21.

Wilmington walkers will join more than 8,000 participants, who are expected to raise $5 million for cancer research and care for children and adults at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Over the past 14 years, walkers and their supporters have contributed more than $26.5 million to Dana-Farber.

Participants can register with a team or as an individual; each participant age 13 and older must raise a minimum of $200. Participants age 12 and younger must raise a minimum of $100. Pacesetters, those who raise $750 or more, receive special recognition from the Jimmy Fund, and are invited to a celebration at the start of the next Walk season. Participants are encouraged to form teams and walk in honor of those who have been affected by cancer.

The Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk is the only event, other than the Boston Marathon itself that is sanctioned by the Boston Athletic Association to use the historic 26.2 mile route from Hopkinton to Boston. Walkers can choose from two different routes: 26.2 miles from Hopkinton, 7 a.m.; or 13.1 miles from Wellesley, 11 a.m. Patients and their families can follow the three mile route that begins at the Harvard Medical School Quad, at 2 p.m. All walkers finish at the Copley Square finish line.

Kennedy to resign from WCTV

of news crew that covered Wilmington events," Kennedy recalls.

Kennedy worked to changed that impression. She spoke to any committee or board or organization in town that would welcome her. She met with various sports boards, the Wilmington Women's Club, parent groups, Kiwanians, Rotarians, Lions, Masons, you name it.

"I talked about why public access television is good for their organization and good for the community," Kennedy states.

What will Kennedy, who grew up in Wilmington and went to the high school here, miss most about covering her hometown on television?

"Those really long town meetings," she laughs. "Actually, I will really miss the people of Wilmington a lot. There are so many folks here in town that work very hard at their volunteer efforts to make Wilmington a nicer place. Many of these people work so quietly behind the scenes. Most residents never know how much work they put in getting town events together."

When Kennedy networks with colleagues in the business, she often raves about the works of the Good Guy and Fourth of July Committees in Wilmington.

"What other community has a whole week and a whole building dedicated to celebrating our nation's birthday?" Kennedy asks. "None that I know of. Wilmington has tremendous town pride and spirit. I will really miss being a part of that."

Kennedy's hopes and dreams for WCTV extend beyond her departure. In the years ahead, for instance, she would like to see WCTV move from its current location at the Swain School on Middlesex Avenue to a new home. She hopes that a new station can be part of a larger "community center" that will also provide opportunities for other organizations in town.

"A meeting room with full audio/visual capabilities would be nice," Kennedy says. "There was a time when we offered our former conference room to community groups, and it was utilized quite a bit. However, we are now so crowded in the Swain basement that the conference room is now our media lab, and, therefore, no longer available for its former use."

As for her successor, who has not yet been hired, Kennedy sees a number of challenges. In addition to relocating WCTV to a larger "community media center," Kennedy believes that a need exists to diversify WCTV's funding and upgrade its equipment to a digital format.

While Kennedy is still a little more than a month away from her last day on October 23, she does hope that enough time exists for her to assist the WCTV Board of Directors in selecting the station's next executive director.

"WCTV deserves an executive director who has great energy, fresh ideas, and the will power to follow through with them," Kennedy states.

The board of directors certainly have a model on which to base their selection. Kennedy will be missed by those associated with WCTV, particularly by her staff.

"It's been wonderful working with her here," says WCTV Membership Coordinator Donna Gacek. "I know her decision was a tough one to make, but I am happy for her. We're really going to miss her. The whole community is going to miss her tremendously."

President Bush visits recovering soldier

"Recognition," Coin is an unofficial element of military culture that was originally presented by commanders and sergeants to soldiers who demonstrated excellence in the course of duty. The coin today is a collective symbol of all of our US armed services' core values, including honor, respect, duty, commitment, integrity, selfless service, excellence, loyalty, and courage.

The coin and the president's visit were just the latest honors to be bestowed on Lockhart.

In a private ceremony, Lockhart was awarded a Purple Heart by Congressman Young, Chairman of Appropriations.

The Purple Heart, a combat distinction awarded to US military personnel who are wounded during war, killed in action, or eventually succumb to their injuries sustained in action, is the oldest military decoration in the world that is still used today.

The past four weeks have been encouraging for Lockhart, his wife, Lisa, their first child, Morgan, and his parents and sisters, who live in Tewksbury and Wilmington. Lockhart, a platoon sergeant with Fox Troop, 2nd Squadron, 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, initially faced imminent death within 72 hours of the accident with the land mine. He lost nearly five liters of blood in the blast and was placed on life support. The attack did take the life of Captain Josh Byers.

By August 14, Lockhart's condition stabilized, enabling him to be transferred from a German hospital to Walter Reed in Washington, where he underwent further surgeries on his lower back to stop the leakage of spinal cord fluid.

According to his wife, Lisa, Lockhart is improving slowly. He has been bedridden for nearly two months, but he is expected to be able to put some weight on his broken leg some time this week. The two have been married for nearly ten years and Morgan, their first child, was born on July 10, only 13 days before the attack.

It is uncertain how long Lockhart will remain at Walter Reed. His team of doctors are optimistic that the family will return to their home at Fort Carson, Colorado, by Christmas, assuming that suitable medical facilities and doctors in the area are available. Lockhart's sister, Dawn Roberts, lives in Wilmington. She says that her brother's story is only one of thousands of post-Iraqi war stories.

"One only needs to walk the corridors of Walter Reed Army Medical Center to observe and appreciate the sacrifices these wounded courageous soldiers have so selflessly given of themselves to protect our freedoms and guard our great country," Roberts says. "May we pray for the swift recoveries of the wounded, and hope that their quality of life in the near future resumes, along with the safe homecoming of all of our soldiers."

Dean Lockhart, the son of Arthur and Janice Lockhart of Pringle Street in Tewksbury, joined the Army in 1990. He is a member of the Audie Murphy Society, a club for the most elite noncommissioned Army officers. He is a 1989 graduate of Central Catholic High School in Lawrence.

The family of SFC Lockhart sincerely appreciates and thanks those of you who have offered support, prayers, and well wishes, all of which have truly made a difference.

one of the 38 files were handed over to DeRensis.

That remaining file, Royal Dynasty vs. The Town of Wilmington, has now been delivered to DeRensis as well.

Royal Dynasty vs. The Town of Wilmington involved an appeal taken by the Lowell Street restaurant in regard to a suspension of its liquor license by the Board of Selectmen. The license had been suspended following an April 2001 traffic fatality in Wilmington that involved patrons who had drank at the restaurant shortly before the accident.

Newhouse, who was town counsel at the time, had recused himself from the case because one of his associates was representing the decedent's family.

"I did want to avoid even the appearance of impropriety, so I recused myself," Newhouse stated recently.

Newhouse's predecessor, former Town Counsel Alan Altman, was appointed as special counsel for the case. Newhouse never had possession of any files pertaining to the case.

On Tuesday, September 9, DeRensis reported that Altman did not have the file for the case, either. Despite the agreement that the transition was complete, DeRensis maintained that the single file remained "missing."

The matter did not languish, however, as DeRensis was able to ascertain the case's status the very next day. DeRensis was able to determine that the Royal Dynasty file had indeed been closed, despite the fact that it had been listed as "open" and "pending" in the 2002 Annual Town Report.

"One less file to worry about," DeRensis stated.

Pentucket wins sixth straight gridiron battle

Wildcats get turned over in season opener

By SARAH RALLS
Sports Correspondent

Wilmington High football coach Bob Almeida would love to have started this season off on a strong note. A win in the season and home opener would certainly have brought a smile to his face. A win against the team's arch rival, Pentucket Regional would have been the icing on the cake after so many agonizing losses to the Sachems over the years.

But for the sixth straight meeting, Pentucket got the better of the Wildcats. For the third time in the past four years, the Sachems won in dramatic fashion, either taking the game away in the final minute of the game, or on the final play. This one came down to the last minute where the Sachems scored the lone touchdown of the game with 35 seconds remaining and that was enough for the 7-0 victory held at Alumni Stadium on Friday night.

So instead of the opening victory against the four-time Cape Ann League champions, Almeida will now spend this week trying to get his team into better form for Friday's non-league game against Merrimack Valley Conference foe Andover, who haven't matched up against the 'Cats since they left for the CAL for the 1995 season.

In eight seasons at Wilmington, 6 of Almeida's 21 losses have come from Pentucket Regional.

"Every year but one, we've either lost in the last minute or in overtime," Almeida explained. "But we will bounce back."

Wilmington's defense did a tremendous job holding All-Scholastic running back Jason Fish to just 14 rushing yards on 7 carries. Pentucket managed 156 yards on the ground and 174 total yards of offense as the 'Cats defensive unit certainly did a very good job throughout the entire game.

But on the flip side, Wilmington's offense was the problem. The 'Cats had five drives end on turnovers, three on fumbles and two on interceptions. Wilmington had a touchdown called back on a penalty, while, it also lost another would-be touchdown on a fumble deep into the Pentucket zone.

Wilmington had the advantage on the ground gaining 199 yards on the ground and 45 in the air for 244 total yards, 70 better than the Sachems. Wilmington struggled with its passing game as sophomore quarterback Joe Herra completed just 3-of-11 passes, while he tossed two interceptions. The latter set up Lisle Buckley's game winning touchdown with 35.8 seconds remaining in the game.

"We had opportunities the entire game," said Almeida. "I think we outplayed them. We had over double total yardage than they did."

Almeida added by saying that Herra will rebound in the weeks to come.

"Joe Herra is a very good quarterback and a very good decision maker," said Almeida. "That's the first time in twelve starts that he had a tough game like that."

Both teams had missed opportunities to score. Three quarters were played with good defense from both teams to hold the game scoreless. Pentucket tried to take a lead early in the fourth quarter as Fish attempted a 35-yard field goal, but it was blocked by Dave DeMango, who played very well defensively despite battling a hamstring injury.

Later on the fourth quarter, the 'Cats had the ball on 2nd-and-8, but Pentucket's Drew Vetere intercepted a Herra pass at the 45 before taking the ball down to Wilmington's 20 yard line. Buckley carried for two more yards before Vetere brought the ball down to Wilmington's 13-yard line.

With 1st-and-8, Fish carried for 5 additional yards for a first down at the 8 yard. After a strong defensive play by the combination of captains Bobby Harrington and Charlie Lojek, Buckley scored with 35.8 seconds remaining taking the ball in from the 6 yard line. Fish booted the PAT and Wilmington just didn't have enough time left on the clock for a dramatic finish.

"This feels like heaven," said Pentucket quarterback Tom Beaton, who finished the night completing just 3-of-8 passes for 18 yards which included an interception. "There's nothing better than playing Wilmington on a Friday, opening night. We really played hard and everyone was into it."

Pentucket began the game with the ball getting as far as midfield before punting. Wilmington's Derek Trueira returned the punt, taking it to Pentucket's 35 yard line. Captain Sean Godding - who ended the night with 102 rushing yards and 32 receiving yards - carried for six yards to Pentucket's 41 yard line.

After a short rush by Trueira putting the ball to the 45, Herra completed a pass to Robbie Gillis on third-and-two, and he was able to get the first down being tackled at midfield. The drive continued when Gillis carried for 11 combined yards on two running plays moving the ball inside the Sachems' 40 yard line.

After two unsuccessful plays, including a 5-yard loss, Herra sent a pass to his right to Trueira, who carried the ball into the end zone in what was thought to be the first touchdown of the game. But a penalty flag was thrown for an ineligible receiver down field which negated the touchdown keeping the game scoreless.

Wilmington had another opportunity to score in the second quarter when Godding carried the ball for 20 yards to Pentucket's 5 yard line before being tackled which forced the ball to come loose and Pentucket pounced on it. That was one of many miscues on the night. In the end that was the difference of the win for Pentucket and the loss for Wilmington.

Football team has plenty of time for redemption

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA

This looks like a promising year for the Wilmington High football team. And by the looks of the amazing crowd that crammed Alumni Stadium Friday night proves they'll have plenty of support. The Sachems of Pentucket certainly looked like a visiting team compared to the crowds they've brought the last few years.

The game began with a bang as the Pentucket kick returner was hoping someone would return him to Pentucket Regional as he was wrecked by a storm of blue jerseys. Then the Wilmington defense forced Pentucket to punt on four and out. Momentum certainly was on the home town team's side and remained there for most of the game.

One thing that was noticeable was Wilmington was out for redemption because of all the times they lost at the hands of Pentucket. Each individual wanted to redeem himself.

On Wilmington's first drive, quarterback Joe Herra rolled out, and was thrown to the ground, much to the dismay of the Wilmington faithful. The very next play, Herra rolled out again, however this time he ran to the sideline and made an unbelievable cut back leaving a flock of Sachems in disbelief, as he then lofted a pass to a wide-open receiver for a touchdown. The crowd roared, but the score was called back on an ineligible receiver call.

As well as Wilmington played throughout the entire game, the only thing they couldn't bounce back from was their own mistakes. It seemed like every time

Wilmington was about to score, they turned it over. Five times to be exact. The 'Cats should have ran away with this game.

Besides the turnovers, this game had a lot of highlights worth mentioning. Just inside the start of the second quarter, Wildcat defensive back Brian Giamberdino fell victim to what some people call a steamroller. He got flattened. But he redeemed himself. On the next play however, he delivered what some other people call a truck. He ran the ball carrier over. As the Sachem sat up dazed and confused, looking for a license plate, the crowd erupted, once again giving Wilmington another momentum surge.

The Wildcat defense looked like the Monsters of the Midway, every play was a gang tackle. Sean Godding had a huge sack. Several Pentucket players were mercilessly shoved out of bounds, and the Wilmington front four kept constant pressure on the Sachem's running backs.

The first half ended scoreless, and with 22 minutes left the crowd was anticipating touchdowns, more hits and highlight reel plays. The first play from scrimmage to begin the third quarter seemed to get things going for Wilmington. Godding took the ball around the left side sprung by a Herra cut-block, deep into Pentucket territory, but the 'Cats turned the ball over on a fumble down near the goal line. Once again the 'Cats redeemed themselves as the defense held their ground limiting the powerful Pentucket offense to zilch.

But with less than a minute to go in the game, Pentucket was able to get on the scoreboard scoring the lone touchdown of the game. As the clock wound down, Wilmington fell just short of Pentucket again. But the Wildcat players can and should hold their heads high. They played very hard and they played their hearts out.

There's still ten more weeks to the season for the Wildcats to play lights out defense, to make plays on special teams, and to put points on the board. They proved Friday night they could do all three. Now they just have to redeem themselves with a 'W' for this Friday night when Andover comes to town.

Peabody hits the greens for the Gold

Keith Peabody continues to bring home medals.

The Wilmington native traveled to Florida this past week and took part in the three-day Special Olympics Golf Invitational Tournament held at the PGA Golf Club in Port St. Lucie. The tournament featured 158 golfers competing in one of five levels of competition on the award winning North and South courses from September 14-16.

On the third and final day, Peabody shot a 53 for an 8-stroke win and he captured the Gold Medal with a total score of 153 over the three days in the Level 4, 9-hole individual stroke play competition. His score was 18 shots better than his previous best. His score was also the best of out of 17 states which were represented in his level of play.

"Golf is important and exciting for me," said Peabody. "I played great today and made some new friends this week. It was a fun tournament."

On the first day of competition, Peabody finished with a score of 51.

"My round was good and I am used to the course because this is my third year playing," he said. "I shot a 51 today and a lot of holes were my best shots. I am having such a blast."

Peabody's second day of golf ended with his best performance with a score of 49.

Tea times began at 7:30 a.m. daily, Sept. 14-16. The tournament concluded with awards ceremonies from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on September 16.

The United States Golf Association supported Special Olympics by donating over $1 million to the movement's golf initiatives since 1992. In addition, the USGA also acts in an advisory capacity for the golf program.

Special Olympics is an international year-round program of sports training and competition for individuals with mental retardation. More than one million athletes in more than 150 countries train and compete in 26 summer and winter sports. According to Special Olympics, more than 8,000 Special Olympics golfers from 17 countries competed in 2002.

Wilmington-Tewksbury boys soccer

'Cats finally get a goal, and a win

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Wilmington came in with two zeroes and Tewksbury came in with one. Wilmington eliminated its two doughnuts, while the Redmen still have the one big important one left.

Both soccer teams were winless coming into each team's fourth game into the season on Tuesday afternoon at the Wynn Middle School. The Wildcats had yet to score a goal and featured an 0-2-1 record. Tewksbury was also winless but they had been outscored 13-3 in its three games.

By the time of the whistles blew for the end of the game, Wilmington pumped in about seven goals yet only three counted. The 'Cats did win their first game of the season, but it came in sloppy style. The team had seven off-sides called, while, there were several clear sides of breakdown throughout the field. At times the team did very well and those minutes were enough in their 3-1 victory over the Redmen.

Wilmington ended what became 252 minutes without a goal to begin the season 11 minutes into the game and they added two second half tallies to break the 1-1 tie and finally get into the win column.

"I thought we controlled the play but once again we're still not converting on the chances we get," said Wildcat coach Steve Scanlon. "Twenty shots were taken and just nine were on net and that was in the first half. Eleven shots were taken and only five landed on net in the second half. That's 31 shots and we only got three goals out of that. On top of that we had eight off-sides penalties and some of them were legit but quite frankly some of those calls I still don't understand. I don't know where they came from or what they were calling."

"When you're going like we have without goals, you are going to press so the added off-sides calls are expected. And it would be a concern if we weren't creating. We're just not converting and that's the concern once again."

Tewksbury falls to 0-4 on the season, which include a pair of losses against strong Cape Ann League teams in Ipswich (6-1) and Wilmington, which came after a pair of losses to MVC rivals Methuen (3-2) and Billerica (4-0). Head coach Steve Levine put a lot of the blame on himself.

"Maybe I'm stressing them too much, I don't know," he said. "It's frustrating. You're a part of this program for 28 years and this is what you are left to watch. No one is running hard to the ball. Wilmington has some skill and we're not that far behind them. But they were going hard to the ball and that's why the result is what it is. We have to go back to square one. The kids are just not used to winning. They get shutout, they don't win and that's why they don't know how to win."

"The attitude of going after the ball is going to change. It has too. Wilmington had five goals taken away on off-sides so this should have been a 7-1 or 8-1 game. I'm not going to give up that's for sure. Something will and something has to be there. If we played a Tewksbury youth soccer team we would still be in trouble because everyone just looks at each other seeing what the other player will do instead of going hard after the ball. We can't get anything set because everytime I turn around someone else is telling me that they are injured or tired. The conditioning isn't where it should be either."

"The team's disorganization starts with me. It's the coach's fault for some of those errors. The problem is me and not with the kids. They aren't hustling and not thinking right and I've been around long enough to realize that you don't put the blame on the kids because it's my fault. I'm the one who has to find a way to get the kids to hustle, to get them to go to the ball hard, to get them to play together and to get them thinking the right way. They got to want to play hard and that's the problem I have to deal with it. And I will address it and I will fix it."

Wilmington got on the scoreboard in the 12th minute of the game. Senior captain Mike Kelley had the ball on the left hand wing and sent a cross pass to the back post. Teammate Berend-Jan Dumartin was there and he trapped the bouncing pass before unleashing a low shot the far left hand corner beating Matt Belmonte (11 saves).

Wilmington maintained a lot of the possession for the rest of the half but had a defense meltdown in the final few minutes. In the 38th minute, two Tewksbury players were left alone in front of the net which allowed Patrick Fitzmaurice to feed Jeffrey Fredriksen, who blasted one to the far right corner beating Andy Bamberg (7 saves) to tie the game up at one.

Tewksbury came alive and seemed to be playing much better to begin the second half, while it seemed like Wilmington was allowing the Redmen to take control in the midfield.

But in the 12th minute of the second half, Wilmington took that momentum away. Bryan Little took a throw-in in front of Wilmington's bench and sent the ball nicely down the left wing sidelines behind a pair of Tewksbury defenders. Brian Schell came hustling in behind the defenders and alertly kept the ball in play by sending a left foot cross bullet to the far side of the net. Brian Lemke came in strong off the weak side and one-touched the shot to the left hand top corner for the game winning goal.

Five minutes later, Wilmington padded the lead when sophomore P.J. Russo sent a shot from within the 18-yard box which trickled inside the left hand post for the team's third goal. After going 252 minutes without a goal, Wilmington scored three in 63 minutes.

Tewksbury had several chances to climb back into the game as Bobby Fitzpatrick and Jason Knight both had shots which were saved, while, Dave McCauley misfired off a corner kick while planted in front of the net.

Redmen to hold annual car wash for Jimmy Fund

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Tewksbury boys' soccer program is seeking donations from locals as well as businesses for Saturday's annual "Jimmy Fund Walk for Cancer" Car Wash and Vacuum. This is the 10th year the program has participated in the festivity to help raise money for children.

The event will be held on September 21st, 2003, at the John Wynn Middle School in Tewksbury. The rain date is set for Sunday, September 22nd.

One hundred percent of the funds collected go to the Jimmy Fund Boston Marathon Walk! Last year the team collected $3,035 and presented the money to a representative of a team of walkers who added the total to those monies they collected for the same outstanding event.

On this one day, the team forgets about soccer and give their time and energy to working hard to raise money to allow other kids the opportunity to enjoy their lives the best they can, despite this horrible disease.

The program appreciates any donation or support which are made. Checks, if given, can be made out to: The Jimmy Fund Marathon Walk. Those checks can be dropped off at the Wynn Middle School on Saturday.

'Cats needed this one

Wilmington, which went to the Division 2 North sectional semifinals last year, needed Tuesday's victory against Tewksbury to get back into the playoff hunt. Had they lost the game this season could have already gotten away from them.

"We needed this win," said Scanlon. "We finally get on the board and into the win column and that's big. I think this week is very pivotal. We need to take both games, this one and Thursday against Amesbury. Next week is going to be a killer with Masconomet, North Andover and Hamilton-Wenham. We need to pull even (to 2-2-1) after this week."

Wilmington was defeated by North Reading, 3-0, last Thursday. Scanlon said his team dominated throughout the entire match with at least 8 or 9 golden opportunities to score, but didn't cash in. Instead several sloppy goals were scored against Wilmington causing the defeat.

Redmen could pass go

The Redmen are still searching for their first win, and should they crack the win column in the next stretch of games, they'll have the home support. After traveling to Dracut on Thursday to face former JV coach Ron Perrin at Dracut, Tewksbury will have five of its next six games at home against Chelmsford, Central Catholic, Brighton, Lowell and Haverhill.

A little moment

During Tuesday's game there was one very comical moment. Wilmington's Bryan Little wearing the No. 13 had the ball down the right sidelines. Wilmington head coach Steve Scanlon didn't like what Little did with the ball and yelled out something along the lines of "Bryan Little what are you doing?" Tewksbury head coach Steve Levine snapped his neck back at Scanlon with a look of wonder. That was because Levine has a player named Bryan Little on his team who was wearing the No. 19.

After Scanlon found out why, Levine was looked at him so strangely, Scanlon walked to midfield and said "Steve, I wasn't yelling at your player. We both have a Bryan (Bryan Little)." Levine smiled.

Also smiling was Wilmington's No. 10 Berend-Jan Dumartin. After receiving two yellow cards in the team's first game against Masconomet, which forced him to sit out the team's next game, the junior midfielder made it count on Tuesday. Martin, an exchange student from Amsterdam, scored his first goal in the United States, and the team's first goal of the season at the 12th minute mark of the first half. He took a cross from teammate Mike Kelley and buried the shot to the low far corner.

Lady 'Cats rally back against Redgals

By MATT KALMAN
Sports Correspondent

Fresh off a win over Westford Academy in its first match of the season, the Tewksbury volleyball team looked ready to double its win total when it rallied past Wilmington in the first game of Thursday's match.

The host Wildcats, however, weren't about to let the Redmen leave the gym with a 'W' quite that easy and with its communication and service returns clicking on all cylinders, Wilmington bounced back for a 2-1 nonleague win.

After the Redmen won the first game, 30-22, the Wildcats won the second game, 30-14, and then closed out Tewksbury with a 30-16 third-game victory. Wilmington improved to 3-0 with the win.

"I was very happy with the fact that they bounced back from the loss, which obviously shows something about the character that they have on this team," Wilmington coach Mark Staffier said. "I think it was a reality check. If we don't do it right, this is what's going to happen. But as much as I could put them down for the first set, it still meant a lot to me that they bounced back."

It looked to be an easy day for Wilmington when the Wildcats jumped out to a 12-4 lead. With the score tied, 3-3, Kelley Lemke served nine straight points during a stretch that included four aces.

Wilmington built its lead as large as nine again at 17-8 before a kill by Tewksbury's Kristen Smolinsky put the serve in the Redmen's possession. Amanda Sutherby proceeded to serve the next 11 points - including four aces - for a 21-17 Tewksbury lead. The rally also included another Smolinsky kill.

The Wildcats couldn't recover, as the Redmen twice built a six-point lead and then closed out the match with back-to-back service aces by Michelle Frazier.

"The first game was the way the girls usually play," said Tewksbury coach Dustine Puma. "The second and third game was not what I am accustomed to seeing from them in practice. The first game was what I'm accustomed to seeing. Once they got warmed up, they played completely to their potential."

Said Staffier: "I think we jumped out to a big lead, and all of a sudden it was like, 'oh, we can beat them' and we got back on our heels. Especially in this sport, it can change quicker than you know. And unfortunately we weren't able to bounce back. We kind of fell too far behind. From (the bench) there's not really much you can do. I called a couple of timeouts to get them to calm down, but they didn't respond until they actually lost and found out this is the real deal."

Tewksbury scored the first point of the second game, but never led again after 1-0. Four straight service points by Wilmington's Kirsten Frizol put the Wildcats up 10-4 and the Redmen never got closer than four points the rest of the way.

Elisa Maglione enjoyed one stretch where she served four straight points, including an ace and a kill by Katie Riley, and Krystle Chambers served the game's final four points. Chambers aced one serve and a kill by Frizol ended the game and evened the match, 1-1.

Gina Ranno ended any thoughts the Redmen had about completing their road win when the Wilmington senior co-captain served the first eight points on the final game. She aced two serves and Maglione nailed a kill before a carry against the Wildcats gave the Redmen the serve with Wilmington ahead, 8-1.

Wilmington extended its lead to eight before the Redmen close to within five at 13-8. After a bad Tewksbury serve, Wilmington improved its lead from six points to nine behind Riley's serving.

After falling behind by 11, Tewksbury mounted one last rally to cut the lead to 21-13 with a pair of service points by Lindsey Cullity - one recorded on a kill by Sarah Concannon. But Wilmington defused the situation and cruised the rest of the way.

"The second and third game, they started to fall back into old habits," said Puma. "And that's what we talked about. We're going to have to fix and work on that. They weren't communicating with each other going for the ball. A lot of serves went into the net or out. That's something we're going to have to work on."

Wilmington had no such problem talking once the Wildcats got to the second game.

"One thing we always see is, when they're not up for a game or they're nervous they stop talking. And that really is a major key to the game," said Staffier. "They did that better in the second game and third game."

Glitch holds Sutherbee's serving game back

By MATT KALMAN
Sports Correspondent

After she impressively served 11 straight points during Tewksbury's first-game win over Wilmington Thursday, Redmen senior Amanda Sutherby only served once more the rest of the match.

A rotation violation cost the Redmen the chance to let Sutherby serve midway through the third game. Instead of her serving with the Redmen down 12-6, Sutherby lost her chance to serve and the Wildcats were awarded a point for a 13-6 lead.

"I don't know what happened," said Tewksbury coach Dustine Puma. "They just weren't fully together. And at that point, that was like the M.O. of the game."

The Wilmington match was just Tewksbury's second of the season, so Sutherby's shuttling from the court to the bench was also a result of Puma still trying to find the right mix on the floor.

"Actually I put Sutherby in to serve at her points, but we were out of rotation and that cost her the serve. I have two setters and they each play half the game. So it was just Sutherby's time to come out," said Puma. "I felt kind of awkward taking her out at that point, but Katie (Barbato) can play just as well and we're trying to finalize who's going to play. They both have their strengths and their weaknesses and I think it throws the other team off a little bit."

Sutherby's only other serve came late in the second game, with Wilmington winning the point after a lengthy volley. ...

Wilmington was riding a high into the Tewksbury match after soundly beating league rival and perennial league-title contender Masco, 2-0, on Wednesday. The Wilmington-Masco rivalry has increased in recent years because many players from both squads play together during the offseason.

"I was surprised, (my players) came out extremely pumped and very nervous because I guess some of the girls played with some of them in juniors. But fortunately for us, that nervousness turned into a lot of adrenaline and excitement. It was amazing," said Staffier.

The Wildcats might have also caught the Chieftains at just the right time.

"It was (Masco's) first game of the season and there might have been some first-game jitters," Staffier said. "But they have a girl, I think it's their starting middle hitter, who hits better than anyone else I've seen in the league." ...

When he made this season's schedule, Staffier knew the Wildcats' first week - complete with four matches - could make or break their season. Especially with just two returning starters, the inexperienced players' psyches easily could've been broken with a slow start. But instead, Staffier was rewarded with his team's 4-0 start. After beating Tewksbury, Wilmington downed Stoneham, 2-0. The Wildcats finally had two days off on Saturday and Sunday before they faced Reading on Monday and suffered their first defeat, 2-0.

Wildcat golf team dips under .500 mark

By PAUL HAYES
Sports Correspondent

Despite stellar performances from junior captain Kevin Velardo and sophomore Zach Ungvasky, the Wilmington High golf team lost to Ipswich on Tuesday, 126-112.

Velardo and Ungvasky, Wilmington's number one and two golfers, each scored 25 points against Ipswich. Their combined scores accounted for approximately half of the team's scoring. Also performing well for Wilmington were Mike Hackett and Brendan Strem, each scoring 20 points.

If Wilmington can take away anything positive from the loss, it was the play of its top three. It was the second consecutive match in which Velardo, Ungvasky and had scored 20 or more points. Against Newburyport, Velardo scored 20, Ungvasky scored 21 and Hackett scored 23.

The loss drops Wilmington (1-2) to below .500 for the second time this season. While not unusual, it is the first time Wilmington has failed to open their season 3-0 since 1999. They did not lose a regular season match from late 1999 through the end of the 2002 season.

Earlier this month, Wilmington head coach Al Fessenden had predicted that Ipswich would be a difficult opponent, citing a resurgence in their golf program.

"Ipswich was down for years but they are back in the fold," said Fessenden.

The match was played according to the quota point scoring system, which was adopted this year by the Cape Ann League. According to Fessenden, the quota point system pits golfers against the course, rather than one another, because the quota point system has no head-to-head scoring component.

In this case, Wilmington was pitted against an away course, Ipswich Country Club, a challenging 18 hole golf course. Par is 36 for both the front and back nine holes. The home course advantage meant Ipswich knew better what clubs to hit, and where to hit their shots.

The course stymied the other half of Wilmington's starting eight. While four golfers scored 20 or better, the remaining four all scored 11 points each. Not surprisingly, these were the team's younger and less experienced players. Over half of the team's starting eight have never played varsity.

Last week, Fessenden said inexperience and unfamiliarity with the new scoring system had impaired the team. But with time, he said he expected their play will improve, and they would adjust to playing golf at the varsity level.

After three matches, Wilmington's leading quota point scorers are Velardo, 68 points, Ungvasky, 63 points, Hackett, 55 points, Strem, 53 points, and Jason Evans, 40 points. Statistical leaders are as follows: Birdies: Hackett, 3; Velardo and Ungvasky, 1 (tied). Pars: Velardo, 14; Ungvasky, 7; Evans, 6; Strem and Matt Macheachern, 5 (tied). Bogeys: Hackett and Strem, 13 (tied); Velardo, 9; Brian Frongillo, 8.

Wilmington returns to action against Amesbury at Amesbury Country Club on Thursday.

Correction: In last week's edition of the Town Crier, it was reported that Kevin Velardo scored 26 points in Wilmington's win over Newburyport. He actually scored 20 points. The Town Crier apologizes for the error.

Retired boxers night, Sept. 27

On Saturday, September 27, 2003 The Emerald Rose Irish Pub Restaurant in Billerica, MA will host a fund raising event for the Retired Boxers Foundation. This organization was founded by retired boxer Alex "The Bronx Bomber" Ramos in 1995 and, along with Executive Director Jacquie Richardson, was formally incorporated in 2000.

The RBF is honored to have a champion like Micky Ward donating his time and lending his name to this great benefit.

Tickets for the VIP luncheon, at a cost of $100 per person, are available by calling Vince O'Donnell, General Manager of the Emerald Rose Pub, at 978/667-0500. Ticket availability is limited and this event is expected to sell out quickly.

As the area's most popular Irish Pub, The Emerald Rose is a fitting venue for "Irish" Micky Ward and other members of the New England Boxing Community to come together raising money for such a worthwhile charity that benefits retired boxers throughout the country.

The afternoon will begin with a VIP luncheon from 12:00 noon to 1:30 p.m. The highlight of the luncheon will be a presentation to honor "Irish" Micky Ward as the recipient of the "Undisputed Champion of Dignity" plaque to be presented by Alex Ramos.

From 1:30 to 4:00 p.m., The Emerald Rose will open the doors to welcome all members of the boxing community including boxers, fans and boxing enthusiasts to participate in an autograph and photo session with Micky Ward and other honored guests.

Field Hockey team looking to rebound after tough week

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High field hockey team went 1-2 in the team's three games this past week. First the team was defeated by Pentucket on Wednesday, before coming back strong Saturday morning with a 2-1 victory over Masconomet on the road. On Monday night at home, perennial power Amesbury was too much for them at home in Monday's 5-1 loss.

Wilmington falls to 2-4 on the season.

"(Amesbury's players) go to the ball," said coach Patty Cushing. "They really swarm (after) the ball, and are very aggressive in the circle. We have been improving but (Monday) was just too much for the girls to play against a team with that level of skill. We need to have better control and not panic when we face a team with that much talent."

Wilmington has been battling some nagging injuries to a handful of the team's starters.

That and facing some pretty good teams, including Pentucket and Amesbury are several reasons for the team's latest set backs.

"We need to improve on being more aggressive to the ball, and better and smarter passing," said Cushing. "Before (Monday's) game I would've said we have been improving steadily. The girls need to work on control when we have the ball and executing a successful fast break."

Kellie Farrell, who has been added from the JV level a few games ago, scored the team's lone goal of the game against Amesbury. She went aggressively to the ball which was headed out of bounds before belting it to the back of the net. Jackie Moran, another player up the JV team, continues to add a spark to the team as she and Farrell continue to play very well together.

Against Masco, Wilmington was led by both of its goals coming in the second half. Lauren Cushing scored the first one on a direct drive from a corner with the assist coming from Meredith Bransfield. She got the game winner later on in the half when she went aggressively after the ball and knocked it in on a scramble out in front of the net which was originally set up by Kerry Gillis.

Cushing said the team's defense played very well in the game including seniors Tiffany Zolt, Shannon Fahey and Sam Gillis. Emily Olson supplied a consistent effort in the midfield along with Lauren Cushing. Goalie Allison Decaro also put in a fine effort making a handful of saves to record the win.

Wilmington hosts Hamilton-Wenham on Friday afternoon beginning at 3:45 pm (weather permitting) and then host Triton on Monday at the same time.

"This week we do not have a Wednesday game which gives us three straight practices," said Cushing. "(They will be) much needed practices."

Cross Country teams heading in the right direction

By PAUL HAYES
Sports Correspondent

Their records might indicate they are teams heading in different direction, but to hear it from head coach Tom Bradley, both the Wilmington High boys and the girls cross country teams are more competitive than they have been in years.

In a tri-meet on Thursday, the boys upped their record to 3-0 with wins against Hamilton-Wenham, 25-30, and Lynnfield, 23-34. The top three Wildcats to cross the finish line were junior Chris Murray (15:21), senior captain Shayne Gaffney (15:41) and senior Todd Chen (15:43).

According to Bradley, it was the first time in his seven years coaching cross country that Wilmington has beaten either Hamilton-Wenham or Lynnfield, much less both in the same day.

"I didn't expect them to perform so well," said Bradley. "This was a big win, the boys are excited."

The fact that all three of Wilmington's top runners finished within 25 seconds of each other was an encouraging sign to Bradley. The only runner to finish ahead of them from either team was returning all state runner — from Hamilton Wenham.

While Gaffney and Murray are performing as expected, Chen has been a pleasant surprise of sorts. A former indoor and outdoor track two miler, he had never competed in cross country until this season. Although Bradley pegged him as the team's No. 3 or No. 4 in preseason, Chen has exceeded expectations.

"The gap between (Chen) and them is pretty close," said Bradley. "If he was a minute behind Gaffney, that would not be so great, but the three of them are pretty good punch."

Finishing fourth was sophomore Tom Miele (16:40), followed by junior Ryan Curtis and sophomore Sam Oghasby. According to Bradley, the team's 4-5-6 runners have performed well this season.

"(Miele) has run about a minute behind the top three, and is more than holding up his end of the bargain," said Bradley. "Last year the gap between our three, four and five runners was a problem."

Meanwhile the girls dropped their record to 0-3 with losses to Hamilton Wenham, 18-41, and Lynnfield, 27-29. The top three Lady Cats to cross the finish line were junior Jen Loranger (20:30), senior captain Melissa Marques (20:36) and junior Liz Pettigrew (20:44).

Despite the outcome, Bradley was impressed. He said this is the first season Wilmington has had three runners all vying for the team's No. 1 spot, pointing to the 15 seconds separating Wilmington's top three finishers.

"I've had years where two girls were (that) good, but I don't think I've ever had three girls as competitive on the same team," said Bradley. "(Loranger, Marques and Pettigrew) are working really hard in workouts. They all have more drive this year. They will be up there in pretty much every meet."

Seniors Brynna Moroney and Christina Roux finished fourth and fifth place respectively.

The boys and girls teams both travel to Harold Parker State Park to face North Reading on Wednesday, Sept. 17. The course is similar in topography to Lynnfield, in that both are primarily flat, paved courses, although North Reading's course is .2 miles shorter. But Bradley said he is not concerned where his team runs. There are more pressing issues.

Said Bradley: "The competition is more important than the courses at this point."

Braid, 'Cats blank Hornets

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Junior keeper Alicia Braid continued her strong performance out of the gate as she helped lead the Wilmington High girls' soccer team to a 2-0 shut out victory over neighbor North Reading held last Wednesday afternoon.

Braid, who came up with several huge saves in the team's 1-0 loss to Lynnfield two days before the match against the Hornets, ended with her first shut out of the young season making all 8 saves. The 'Cats have given up just two goals in three games.

"Our defense has looked real good," said coach Sue Hendee. "Alicia has played well and so have the entire defensive unit. But we have some work to do offensively."

Against North Reading, Wilmington only managed several shots on net but they made sure they counted. Junior Debbie Lyons scored both goals in the game giving her four in the team's first three games. She got help on the first goal by senior Ashley Steenbruggen, while, junior Caitlin Foley set her up on the second one on a nice dish off a corner kick.

"In our last two games we only have six shots on net," said Hendee. "So obviously we have some work to do. The week off will help us work on some things. We need to work on transition, there hasn't been much on that. We're just sending the ball ahead and letting Debbie fly past everyone."

"We need to work on the transition game so the defenders get the ball to the midfielders who get the ball to the forwards. It's about composure and learning to bring the ball up a little better."

Wilmington will end up having seven days off from facing North Reading until they host Amesbury Thursday night at 7:00 pm at Alumni Stadium. They'll then have three days off before traveling to Topsfield and facing Masconomet Regional in a rematch of the season and home opener. Wilmington won that game 4-1.

JV Boys soccer team putting forth strong effort

By DAN DILWORTH
Sports Correspondent

Coach Chip Bruce stresses hard work and effort on his team.

"With hard work, everything else falls into place," says Bruce.

He says he saw something good each of the three games they played. He was very impressed with their first game against Masconomet. They played hard against a very good team but could not get the win. Bruce said the team showed "lots of heart" in the game. Bruce said he also liked the way his team played in their other games against Lynnfield and North Reading.

In the three games they played, sophomore forward Steve Potner scored one goal. In the third game, Michael Earls and midfielder John Lippiello were also able to score as Wilmington beat North Andover 3-1. Bruce says he is happy with the progress they are making.

"They're picking up a thing or two every day," said Bruce.

Unfortunately, during a practice, Lippiello collided with defenseman Rick Fudge and suffered a hairline fracture of his leg. He will be out 4-8 weeks. Bruce says he will have to spend time this week shuffling his midfield, looking for players to replace Lippiello.

JV Girls Soccer

Coach Christine Donovan said that in the four years she's been coaching soccer at the high school, this year's team is the strongest yet. They are 3-0 so far and have outscored their opponents 16-2. Julia Stein is the team's full time goalie and has only two goals in three games.

"Everyone is really strong," says Donovan, "There are no weak players."

Donovan also believes that the personalities on the team make it great as well.

"They have a positive attitude and they all get along", she says.

She hopes that they continue to play their hardest and work together without getting too cocky about winning.

Games this week include Masconomet, Amesbury and North Andover. North Andover is traditionally a good soccer program. Donovan also says that the girls are looking forward to Thursday night against Amesbury, which will be their first under the lights.

Freshmen Girls Soccer

Because many schools do not have a freshmen soccer program, it is very difficult to put together a schedule to match (in terms of games played) that of varsity and junior varsity. As a result, the girls generally only play once or twice a week. Their first game, a Friday night game against Newburyport, was an overwhelming success.

Co-Coach Jill Lojek - along with Jill Murphy - was thrilled with the way the girls played on Friday night, saying that they completely dominated the game to the point of being "relentless".

"We had roughly 50 shots on net", said Lojek.

Jill Manginelli scored three times in the second half. The defense held together well also. Lojek was surprised at how quickly the team gelled and played as a team rather than a group of individuals. She hopes to see that same enthusiasm and desire continue throughout the season.

JV Field Hockey

The junior varsity field hockey team also had a busy first week of the season, playing five times in eleven days and going 2-2-1. Their biggest game was also their most recent; a Saturday morning victory against Masconomet in which Christine Barry scored with ten seconds remaining in the game to win it 1-0.

"It was the best game we played (so far this) season," said coach Carol Mutchler.

Mutchler is very happy with the way the girls have played in their first five games. All of the players are becoming more aggressive and starting to go to the ball rather than wait for it to come to them.

Offensively, Barry, Kaitlin Roberts and Amy Lentini have played very well. Defensively, Julie Martell and Michelle Cassim have been playing well. Lauren Sartoris, who is new to the team, has also stood out at sweeper.

They play twice next week, their biggest game coming against Amesbury on Monday night.

Freshmen Field Hockey

The Freshmen field hockey team won all three of their matches this week to begin the season on a strong note under coach Maura Lynch.

"I couldn't ask for anything better", said Lynch.

After their first game was postponed to later in the season, the 'Cats defeated North Andover, Pentucket and Masconomet. Lynch believes that her Wildcat team could be among the top of the league, though it is difficult to gauge so early in the season.

"The offense has been really good. They've been scoring right away," said Lynch.

According to Lynch, however, the best game was one in which they only scored one goal against rival North Andover. Diedre Carroll provided the only goal in the win against one of their biggest rivals.

"North Andover and Amesbury are very good at the varsity level, so I assume they're good at other levels as well," said Lynch.

The 'Cats play their second rival, Amesbury this week and hopefully they will continue to shine.

JV Volleyball

Coach Tracey Kassim was impressed with her team's performance in their first four games. They are 2-2 so far and she says that she has liked the play of team captains Kristen Breslin and Ashley Ricardo. She was also impressed with Katie Celli, who is playing her first year on the junior varsity squad at setter - one of the most demanding positions in the game.

Kassim says that what she likes most about her team is how they have gelled so quickly. The team has 15 players and all of them had a chance to play. The most important thing is for the newcomers to gain experience and they have been doing that. She hopes that in the following weeks, they continue to play as a team. Their biggest game comes on Friday night against Melrose, which has a very good reputation and should be a good challenge.

Former player back for sixth season

Carol getting Mutch out of JV Field Hockey team

By DAN DILWORTH
Sports Correspondent

Carol Mutchler knows a lot about the town of Wilmington and its high school. She also had a strong background in the game of field hockey. Perhaps that's why she has been so successful as the team's Junior Varsity coach.

Mutchler went through the Wilmington school system. She graduated in 1972 and is now employed as a science teacher. Ironically, before becoming involved in the sport as a high school freshman, she had no previous involvement with it.

"The coach of the field hockey team at the time was Alice McCarthy and she would actually scout from her (physical education) classes students that might help her program because it was a smaller program at the time," explained Mutchler. "So she came up to me and asked if I would consider trying out and I said that I would meet her on the field that afternoon. But being a freshman, I was nervous and didn't show up. The next time she saw me, she pulled me out of the corridor and just about insisted that I go out."

Mutchler did join up with McCarthy and immediately the move paid dividends.

"I had never played nor even heard of the game of field hockey (before meeting up with McCarthy)," said Mutchler. "(It was) completely random. It was just being in the right place at the right time."

But after leaving WHS, she never played field hockey again and never really had anything to do with it until many years later, when her daughters entered junior high.

"Some friends of mine who I had played field hockey with had started this feeder program that would help bring better quality players to the high school by grade nine", she explained. "They were becoming active in it and I had daughters that were soon to be junior high age and I knew that this was something they'd be interested in so I got in probably year two of the program."

That was eleven years ago that she joined the feeder program. The program, which still exists today, is designed to introduce the game of field hockey as an alternative to softball or soccer. The girls play twice a week for six weeks on a smaller-than-normal field. There, they learn basic rules and skills involved in the game so that, if they decide that they like it, they are ready to join the freshman team in high school.

And that's where Mutchler comes in. She takes underclassmen and helps get them ready for the varsity team under its head coach Patty Cushing. Six years Mutchler has had tremendous success helping the program grow.

"I can't say enough about her," said Cushing. "She's 100% knowledgeable and dedicated and has been a terrific source of support for me."

The two work well together because, according to Mutchler, they share the same philosophies on the game so, that way, Mutchler is able to prepare the junior varsity girls for Cushing's varsity program. And Mutchler's philosophy seems to focus largely on instinct and knowledge of the game and of what to do in certain situations.

"If you have a player that is less skilled, then if she is head smart she can still be successful," said Mutchler. "That is why, in practice, she will play with them, rather than stand on the sideline, and show the girls where they should be at certain times and during certain play so that they can a good feel for the game."

In six years, she has been very successful. About her win-loss record over the years, she says, "It's varied over the years. Generally, we have a good winning record. I did have one team that was undefeated for the entire season, so that's 19 games. Generally, we win about 75% of our games."

"I don't know that (the 75 percent rate is) really valid thought because you can have a really good team that doesn't win a whole lot. A good team to her may be a team that has a lot of good kids on it and not necessarily one that wins every game."

That is probably what makes her so successful - that she likes kids and feels that she can understand them, having been coaching and involved with the middle school feeder program for so long. It was with this theory that two years ago, she made a career change.

In college, she majored in biology and for many years afterward worked at a lab collecting blood and or other body fluids that could need testing. With this background in biology, she took some courses and the Teacher Certification Test and became a science teacher at Wilmington High School. This is her second year at the school. She says that not a lot has changed since she walked the halls of Wilmington High School as a student.

"In a lot of ways it's very much the same and in a lot of ways, it's very different", she says. "I think society as a whole has changed so the students have changed a little bit to reflect the society we're in now. But overall, the layout of the high school, the quality of the teachers at the high school and the academic programs are all very much the same."

And yet year after year Mutchler continues to do the same thing as a JV field hockey coach. Her enthusiasm and interest in kids allows her to field a winning team year after year.

Sub varsity sports page debuts

Over the years at the Town Crier, many parents, athletes, coaches and readers have asked us why we don't cover junior varsity and freshmen games, and just varsity games. The answer every-time it's been asked is the lack of staff, space and time. However, this year we are adding something new which we believe is fair to everyone involved. Every week we will have a round-up column of all of the sub-varsity teams. The column is based solely on phone calls to each and every coach - thus if a certain team isn't covered (we held off football this week) it's because we couldn't get a hold of the coach. The information provided to us comes directly from the coach. The games will not be covered, however on an occasion we will send a photographer. In addition, we are featuring a different assistant coach per week. [Sp. Ed.]

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-up

Volleyball team already matches last year's win total

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech volleyball team has set its sights on improving on last year's 2-13 record as early returns are any indication, they are going to accomplish that and a whole lot more this season.

The Lady Rams were 2-0 heading into Tuesday's matchup with league powerhouse Presentation of Mary Academy at Shawsheen Tech. PMA was sure to provide the stiffest challenge yet for coach Chet Flynn's squad, but regardless of how that game went, the Lady Rams had served notice that they would be a force to be reckoned with in the Commonwealth Athletic Conference this season with back to back 2-0 wins over Greater Lowell and Fellowship Academy.

Flynn, back on the sidelines after one year away, had been a little concerned going into the season as to what type of start his team would get off to, as they adjusted to both varsity play and his coaching style. After two games, anyway, the results could not be much better.

"I am definitely happy with the way we have started,"

Flynn said. "The girls have really shown a lot. They have come a long way since practice started."

In the Lady Rams first game, played on September 9, they hosted Greater Lowell, and earned a 2-0 (30-21, 30-28) victory. Although Shawsheen trailed for much of the second game, and their play was not as consistent as Flynn would have liked to see, they scratched their way to the win and the sweep. Jackie Raymond, the Lady Rams senior center was a key to the win, running the offense very well and keeping her team focused.

"Jackie is a real stabilizing force for us out here," Flynn said. "She has done a real nice job for us. As I have said before, she is like a quarterback out there for us."

Senior hitter Katie Russo had five kills in the game, but that was nothing compared to her incredible effort against Fellowship last Thursday. Russo served for 22 points in the 30-21, 30-22 victories. Russo's great start to the season has come as no surprise to Flynn, but he may be alone in his expectations.

"Katie has been real consistent throughout for us. She has been a real solid hitter," Flynn said. "She is only 5-foot-2 or 5-foot-3, but she puts the ball in play 90% of the time. I think she surprises some teams considering her size."

Also playing well early in the season has been junior hitter Cailyn McLaughlin, who came on well at the end of last season and has continued her fine play into this year.

"Cailyn has emerged a nice consistent player for us," Flynn said. "She improved so much even just from one game to the next. She struggled a little with her serve against Greater Lowell, but she took a giant step forward against Fellowship."

After the Lady Rams took on PMA on Tuesday, they will take on Greater Lawrence in a home game on Thursday afternoon. The game was originally scheduled to be played at Greater Lawrence, but due to school reconstruction, the gym is not ready to host a game, so Shawsheen will get an extra home game. Regardless of where they play, Flynn is looking to see continued improvement from his team.

"We need to work on our serving and also our communication," Flynn said. "We improved from our first game to our second game, but we still need to be more consistent. We played pretty well vs. Fellowship, so we are looking to continue that."

Girls Soccer team looking for first win

For the Shawsheen Tech girls soccer team, the season has gotten off to a little more of a slow start than their volleyball counterparts. After two games, entering Tuesday's matchup with PMA, the Lady Rams record stood at 0-1-1.

In reality, the Lady Rams record in not entirely unexpected. They have faced two very talented years, including Cape Ann League power Rockport last Wednesday, in which they lost by a 3-0 margin. Their other game was another non-league clash against Pope John, in which they earned a 1-1 tie.

Shawsheen coach Jack Viveiros is looking for his team to improve as they begin league play this week. He was not necessarily expecting his young squad to beat Rockport, but he was hoping for a little better performance.

"We were pretty much outclassed against them," Viveiros said. "I was hoping we could at least score against them. On the other hand, they were just a better team than us and to lose 3-0 to a team of that caliber is not embarrassing at all."

As Viveiros said prior to the season in looking ahead to the Rockport game, winning was not the most important part. Merely facing a team of that caliber will likely benefit his team down the road.

"Mostly I wanted out girls to get an idea of the type of talented team we could end up facing later in the year in the tournament," Viveiros said.

Part of the reason the Lady Rams were able to stay close to Rockport was the play of junior goalie Heather Thomas, who had 23 saves in the game. This followed a 19-save effort in the season opener against Pope John.

"Heather has played out of her mind in both games," Viveiros said. "She has been excellent for us. Both of the game could have been a lot worse."

Also playing very well for the Lady Rams to this point has been senior defender Sarah Zimmer. The Tewksbury native was a league all-star last season, and she looks to be on her way again early this year.

"Sarah has been the real stopper for us back on defense," Viveiros said. "She really runs the defense and her senior leadership has been a big key for us."

If Zimmer and Thomas represent the veterans of the team, then the younger core has been represented very well by a pair of walk on freshmen, fullback Amanda Vacca and forward Kyla O'Leary.

"The two of them have played very well," Viveiros said. "It's nice to see younger players contributing like that. It bodes well for the future of the team."

In the immediate future, the Lady Rams will begin league play in the Commonwealth Athletic Conference this week. After the PMA game, Shawsheen will travel to Greater Lowell on Thursday. Viveiros knows his team will be tested in both games.

"PMA came on strong at the end of last year and even though Greater Lowell is a new team they are not to be taken lightly," said Viveiros. "They beat Lowell Catholic already this year. The league is really up for grabs this year and I think we are one of the teams that can compete for the title."

Cougars air it out against the Rams in home opening loss

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

BILLERICA - This was not the way coach Al Costabile and his Shawsheen Tech football team envisioned the start of the 2003 season.

Heading into Saturday's opener against Arlington Catholic at Samuel J. Cassidy Field, the Rams were hoping to kick start their season with a win over a quality non-league opponent.

But instead, the game turned into a first half nightmare for the Rams, as Arlington Catholic raced to a 26-6 halftime lead en route to defeating Shawsheen, 32-14.

The Rams were done in by a spectacular passing performance by Cougars quarterback Pat Franey, who threw for 232 yards and four touchdowns, three during the first half explosion. Leading the way offensively for the Rams was junior running back Kyle Marzeoti, who chalked up 88 yards and a touchdown on the day.

As for the Cougars offensive output, Costabile said his team was certainly expecting the aerial attack, but unfortunately there was not a lot they could do to stop it. One Franey got on a roll, hooking up with his receivers, many of whom dwarfed the smaller Ram defenders.

"We were expecting it and we tried to work on it during the week by putting (6-foot-5 quarterback) Mike Gore at wide receiver during practice, and having our corners cover him," Costabile said. "They did it last year, as well, so it was nothing that we did not expect, but we just couldn't stop it."

The Cougars wasted no time in getting their passing game going in this one. On the second play of the game, Franey hooked up with running back Casey Hamilton on a 16-yard pass to kick start a drive that would eventually cover 61 yards and give them the lead. Hamilton did a lot of work on the ground during the drive, and Franey capped it off by connecting with D.J. Dolan on an 18-yard scoring strike with 7:24 left in the first quarter for a 6-0 lead after the extra point failed.

Neither team could do much offensively over the next couple of series, as both defenses stepped up and played well. Leading the way for Shawsheen in the early going and throughout the game were senior captains John Pimental at defensive end and Sean Turner at defensive tackle.

Arlington Catholic did, however, put together another drive later in the quarter, marching 43 yards in seven plays to extend their lead. Once again it was Hamilton doing the bulk of the work for the Cougars, and this time he also capped the drive with a 4-yard touchdown run on the first play of the second quarter. Once again, the extra point rush failed, but the Cougars now led 12-0.

"We can't let teams get off to a fast start like that," Costabile said. "We dug ourselves a hole and when you dig a hole like that it makes your job that much more difficult."

The Rams cut into the Cougar lead later in the second quarter, putting together an impressive drive led by the running of Marzeoti, with the key play being a 19-yard completion from Wilmington's Gore to Tewksbury resident Scott Johnson. That play gave the Rams a first down at the Arlington Catholic 27 yard line and three plays later Marzeoti took a sweep to the right side 14 yards down the sideline for a touchdown. Marzeoti got a great down field block from offensive lineman Paul Callahan near the end of the run.

The extra point kick failed, and the Rams trailed 12-6 with 7:59 left in the half.

The momentum seemed to be swinging in the Rams favor, but the Cougars responded quickly, needing just four plays to tack on another score. Franey once again holed up with Dolan, this time on a 31 yard fade pattern for an 18-6 lead with 6:54 left in the half, after another missed extra point.

After the Rams were forced to punt on their next series, Arlington Catholic scored what proved to be a crushing touchdown as time wound down in the first half. This drive took a little longer as the Cougars needed seven plays to drive 88 yards. Franey connected on several long passes on the drive and finished it by hitting Tim Graham for a nine yard touchdown run with 2:15 left in the half. Graham also caught the two point conversion pass, accounting for the 26-6 halftime deficit the Rams faced.

If the Rams were disheartened by their first half performance, they certainly did not show it early in the second half. Johnson intercepted a Franey pass on Arlington Catholic's first series, giving the Rams the ball at the Cougar 31 yard line, and two plays later, sophomore running back Ken Aalerud of Tewksbury made a great 29-yard touchdown run, breaking tackles along the way to bring the Rams within 26-14 with 6:30 left in the third quarter, with Johnson catching the two point conversion pass from Gore.

When the Cougars were forced to punt on their next possession after Marzeoti broke up a third down pass, it looked like the Rams fortunes may have been turning. But Shawsheen could get nothing going offensively and Arlington Catholic took the ensuing drive 45 yards for a touchdown with Franey throwing for his third score of the game by connecting with a wide open Nick Bates for the final score of the game with 2:03 left in the third quarter.

"We just couldn't get over the hump and really out the pressure on them," Costabile said. "We just had to make that one more big play. Two or three times we were on the verge of getting right back into it, but we just couldn't get it done. That is something we'll work on."

Despite the loss, Costabile was pleased overall with his team's performance. Trailing 26-6 at the half, it would have been very easy for the Rams to fold up their tents, but instead they played a very competitive second half.

"I was real happy we didn't quit in the second half," Costabile said. "We fought and we played hard to the end."

Costabile continues to have big appetite

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Several years ago I was attending a Shawsheen Tech football game. During the contest I was talking to another reporter about the Rams, the game and coach Al Costabile. The reporter said something to me that has stuck. "Al is the type of guy that every time you call or meet with him, you just want to invite him to dinner."

I laughed at that comment but also fully agreed.

This past Saturday afternoon, I attended the Rams season opener against Arlington Catholic. And despite the Rams giving up 400 total yards of offense and losing 34-14, Costabile was still that very energetic, positive coach after the game who you still wanted to invite him to your special Spaghetti Dinner.

I've known Costabile for many years now. I remember first meeting him at Aprile Field in Wilmington. Back then he was the head football coach at Bishop Fenwick. I was watching a state tournament softball game and he was standing next to Paul Lyman, the former WHS softball coach. Lyman was his defensive coach for years at Bishop Fenwick, before Costabile took his whistle, clipboard and positive energy to Shawsheen Tech six years ago. Lyman still remains the team's defensive co-ordinator.

That day I met Al he was very genuine. I was introduced to him and we have a very pleasant conversation. And naturally when you have a guy like Al mixed up with a guy like Paul, you'll have many laughs.

About a year later I believe, Al became the football coach at Shawsheen. Back then, here at the Town Crier we didn't have the staff that we do now where I could send someone to cover the team on a weekly basis. Al totally understood that. No matter what games we covered, or no matter if we just called him to get results he was very appreciative of anything we could do for the team. Even if we missed a month of games, and called him, he was terrific. He was the same positive and energetic coach. He didn't give me or the paper problems of not being able to cover his games. He still said thank you at the end of each conversation we did have with him.

I deal and have dealt with many coaches since I began here at the Town Crier in 1993. Some coaches are just like Al. Anything you need they comply. Any questions you ask, they give a nice long answer so you have several good quotes to deal with. Some coaches comply with everything you need but don't really feel comfortable giving off long quotes which is fine. And there's some coaches who don't appreciate your coverage, who don't return phone calls, who don't give any quotes and who don't seem to be behind the kids.

After losing 34-14 and pretty much getting a licking in week No. 1, Costabile gathered his troops in a circle after the game. He told them what they did well and what they need to work on. He told them how they would meet up with Millis on Friday night and even their record to 1-1. He was positive throughout the entire meeting, telling the kids what they can take from this loss and how they were going to learn from it and improve as a team.

He then walked over to myself and my co-worker Mike Ippolito for several questions. What happened coach? Did you prepare for the Arlington Catholic's terrific passing game? Costabile answered everything and thanked us for the coverage.

As I walked away, the same thing entered my mind. "Al is such a great guy - someday I'll invite him over for dinner." Perhaps when my tenure is done here at the Crier, I will finally do that.

Rams look to capture much needed road victory against Millis

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Rams will travel to Millis on Friday night to take on coach Dave Sperandio's Millis High School Mohawks, their second non-league matchup in as many weeks. This will be the only Friday night game of the season for the Rams. While the Rams will be coming off their tough 32-14 loss to Arlington Catholic, this will be the season opener for the Mohawks, who went 6-4 last season, while competing in the Tri-Valley League.

Rams coach Al Costabile sees it as an advantage that his squad already has a game under their belts.

"The improvement from game one to two in a football season is larger than any other time of the year," Costabile said. "Because no matter how much you try to create intensity during practice, nothing can equal a game. In that respect, we have a bit of an advantage."

Millis returns only four starters from last year's squad, but they traditionally fielded a very good team, as Sperandio has posted a 70-21 record in his nine years at the helm of the Mohawks.

Leading the way offensively for Millis will be two of those returning starters, senior quarterback David Clancy, and senior fullback Joe Shuker, along with senior tailback Matt Reardon. Shuker's primary target when he throws the ball will likely be senior wide receiver Nick Schifone.

"Shuker is their best player," Costabile said. "They may even put him at tailback on Friday night. He is the kid we have to stop."

Defensively, linebacker Conor Hogan as well as defensive tackle Chris Ward will lead the Mohawks.

"They play a five man front and are very active at the linebacker position," Costabile said. "We will have to be able to pick up their blitzes."

The Rams were 0-5 on the road last season, a trend they obviously hope to reverse on Friday night.

"If you can't win on the road, you can't win a championship," Costabile said. "We have already talked about that with the team and we will talk about it again." Sophomores look good

Heading into the season, the Rams know that one of their biggest challenges would be replacing leading rusher and team captain Derek Vacca, who they lost to graduation. It has only been one game, but early indications are that they may have done just that with a pair of potentially super backs. And the best part is, they will both be around for a while.

In the loss to Arlington Catholic, sophomore running backs Kyle Marzeoti and Ken Aalerud, of Tewksbury, both looked as if they are ready to carry the torch that Vacca has passed on. Marzeoti led the team with 89 yards rushing including a 14-yard touchdown run in the second quarter. Aalerud ran for 50 yards on just six carries, including a highlight film 29 yard run in the third quarter in which he spun off potential tacklers before out running the rest of his defenders.

"They both played very well," Costabile said. "We look for a lot of great games from them in the future. They are both hard runners and they continue to progress. They both have good speed and they are both developing a feel for running the ball. That is something that only comes with experience, and one they develop that they could be even better."

Keep an eye on these two. By the time they are seniors they could be one of the most feared tandems in the Commonwealth Athletic Conference. Actually, never mind that. If Saturday was any indication, that timetable may even be moved up to this season.

D White football team pops Woburn, 32-8

D-White 32, Woburn 8

Coming off a 32-6 victory over Burlington at Wilmington, they traveled to Woburn under cloudy skies to see if they could remain in the win column. The Wilmington Wildcats D-White team played against Woburn on Sunday at Woburn High School winning the 32-8.

The Wilmington Wildcat Captains were Jaymie Spears, Jim Stokes, Tyler Huebner, and Sean Hanley. Wilmington wins the coin toss and elects to receive the ball.

Woburn kicks-off the first quarter as Wilmington's Jaymie Spears catches the ball on the 45-yardline and goes all the way for a touchdown. Matt Lafarello punched in the extra point putting Wilmington on the scoreboard with 7-0. Wildcats would now kick-off to Woburn, but Wilmington's swarming defense would make it difficult for Woburn to move the ball.

Defensive ends Jimmy Stokes and Derek Duggan would contain and make some key tackles shutting down the outside holding Woburn to little or no gain. Also shutting down the outside were, Kevin Moriarty and Tyler Huebner who were playing outside linebacker positions.

Woburn would try to run up the middle where they were met by a Wilmington's bone-crushing line consisting of defensemen: Killian Smith, Steven Taylor, Derek Duggan, Matt McKenna, Tyler Valente, Steve Reynolds, Nicholas Girardi, and Jimmy Welch playing nose guard.

Woburn was faced with a fourth-and-long and decided to punt. Jaymie Spears was back to receive the punt, but Chris Ryan, who moved up from Safety, battled his way to block the kick giving Wilmington great field position resulting in another six points. Sean Hanley orchestrated runs by Jimmy Welch and Chris Ryan would set the stage for yet another Jaymie Spears, touchdown run. Chris Ryan was stopped short of the extra points as the first quarter ends. Wilmington carries a 13-0 lead into the second quarter. Sean Hanley would receive good protection behind the strong Offensive line, Michael Smith, Killian Smith, Travis Valente, Cody Halliday, Kevin Murphy, Derek Duggan, Matt McKenna, Robert Sutura, and John Parsons who opened up holes and make key blocks for running backs Steve Reynolds, Jimmy Welch, Matt Lafarello and Chris Ryan.

Wilmington would put up another 13 points and Woburn would struggle to keep possession of the ball hampered by fumbles, incomplete passes, and sacks, the second quarter would end 26-0.

The start of the second half begins with Woburn receiving the kick from Sean Hanley. Wilmington's Matt McKenna, Kevin Moriarty, Jaymie Spears, and Jimmy Stokes would hold Woburn in their zone. Woburn generated a little offensive moving the ball for a couple first downs only to be spoiled by the great concentration of Matt Lafarello as he intercepted a pass on the sidelines.

Wilmington would then fumble the ball back to Woburn. The following play from Woburn's offense was a run up the middle, which resulted in their first and last touchdown of the day. Woburn kicks a field goal making the score 26-8.

The fourth quarter begins as Wilmington kicks-off to Woburn and was more of the same. The Wilmington defense continued to pound Woburn's offense. Wilmington's offensive team, lead by Sean Hanley at quarterback, would continue to run at will through the Woburn defense. Wilmington's pass game was effective. Long runs by Jaymie Spears and Matt Lafarello set-up Chris Ryan's one-yard touchdown run. Derek Duggan attempted to kick the field goal, was blocked by Woburn, bringing the score to 32-8. Wilmington would put in Steve Taylor at Quarterback and John Parsons at center to run-off the remaining time on the clock.

Wilmington was able to enjoy the success on both sides of the ball—defensively and offensively. Wilmington earns another great win over a great opponent.

At this time, the team would like to thank the D-White's head coach Mark Brady, as well as the assistant coaches, Ed Fitzgerald (Happy 40th Birthday!), John Laffarello, James Celeste and Robert Harrington along with the Coach Trainee Brad Hodgson for all their devotion to leading the Wildcats to another victory making their record 2-0.

Last but not least, many thanks go out to John Moriarty and Paul Valente for their help on the sidelines. Get well to Derek Queen who has been sidelined due to a bruised collarbone. The team is anxiously awaiting your return. Parents and Players as always appreciate the support of the D-White Cheerleaders. Go Cats!!!

E White team's offense continues to put up big points in week two

Wilmington E-White

Wilmington 20, Woburn 6

Team Captains Sam Silva, Blake Walker and Shaughn Hiltz took to the field in Woburn for the opening coin toss.

Wilmington won the toss and elected to receive the ball. Chris Newton fielded the opening kick off and returned the ball for a 6 yard gain. Chris Newton had an additional 15 yard gain on a quarterback keeper on the next play. Justin MacKinnon ran up the middle behind tremendous forward blocks of Brendan Ahern and Kelly Cassidy for another 15 yard gain.

Jake Flaherty did his part on offense with an awesome 20 yard run, but was knocked out of bounds at the one yard line. Chris Newton powered the ball into the end zone for the first Wilmington touchdown of the game.

Anthony Iosua and Brian Priem drove back the line to allowed Jake Flaherty to sail into the end zone, extra point is good, Wilmington leads 7-0.

Wilmington defense takes to the field. Brian Priem has an incredible tackle on Woburn. Thomas Townsend, with an awesome tackle in the backfield, keeps Woburn from gaining any field position. Ryan Carracino, Cody Crampton and Keenan Beraldi create a solid wall of defense which Woburn can not penetrate. Woburn is held to 4 and out.

Wilmington offense is unstoppable. Sam Silva takes a hand-off and gains 8 yards through a wide gap created by Gerry O'Reilly and Troy Homula. Nicholas Colella and Zachary Blanche spread the defensive line for Justin MacKinnon to bolt up the middle for a 35 yard touchdown run. Shaughn Hiltz breaks through the line and into the end zone, extra point is good. Wilmington leads 14-0.

Woburn answers back quickly with an end around play into the end zone. Jake Flaherty stuffs the ball carrier on the extra point. Wilmington retains the lead 14-6. Wilmington offense returns to the field once again. Blake Walker has a marvelous run with a 35 yard gain. Wilmington goes then to their passing play with a great catch by Shaughn Hiltz for a first down. Keenan Beraldi carries the ball forward several yards. Wilmington is only stopped by the clock, as the first half of play is signaled over.

Wilmington kicks off to Woburn to start the second half. Wilmington recovers their own kick off, despite tremendous play on the line by Alex Girardi and Kennedy Harper, E-White can not capitalize on this possession. Defense takes to the field once again.

Shaughn Hiltz sparks the defense with several incredible tackles. Troy Homula has a great tackle as does Brandon Gentile to hold Woburn to 4 and out. Wilmington offense returns to the field to start the fourth quarter of play.

Shaughn Hiltz makes another great catch on offense for a 12 yard gain. Woburn defense comes alive in the fourth quarter and holds Wilmington to 4 and out. Wilmington defense answers right back with text book tackles by Blake Walker and Thomas Townsend. Zachary Blanche and Sam Silva do their part on defense to push Woburn back. Woburn can not even gain a yard, E-White offense returns to the field.

Chris Newton carries the ball up the middle behind an awesome forward block by Gerry O'Reilly for a first down. Chris Newton carries again, this time right into the end zone, due in part to the great effort of center Brendan Ahern. Wilmington extra point attempt is no good, Wilmington leads 20-6. Fourth quarter of play ended with Wilmington defense on the field.

E-White would like to thank their friends and family and especially the E-White cheerleaders for supporting us each week at our games.

Under 10B girls end in scoreless tie

The Wilmington Girls U10B team stayed played a tough Concord Carlisle squad this Saturday at Shawshen fields.

After a successful 4-1 win last week against Medford, the Wildcats were ready to take on the experienced and determined Concord-Carlisle team. Bianca Carlson was on goal-keeper duty, and came up with timely saves again and again.

The Wildcats, including Delaney Gillis, Emily Colosimo, and Anna Siegel, put a strong defensive effort forth and the opponents were blanked for the first half. A number of strong shots were taken by Lauren McKenna, Megan Priem, and Emily Colosimo but to no avail. Erin Duffy helped break up any attempts to cross mid-field and Caitlyn Cheney was constantly harassing any attempt by Concord Carlisle to attack.

Kelsey Mangan had several drives on net, but Concord Carlisle was up to the task.

The second half started with Erin backstopping the Wildcat goal. Concord-Carlisle started on the offensive and got off several close shots but Erin, aided by Caitlyn and Kelsey on defense turned them aside.

Bianca Carlson took it to Concord Carlisle's net several times and only heroic stops by their goalkeeper kept the ball from going in. The constant back and forth action began to tire both teams but the Wildcats dug in their heels and refused to bend.

Strong defensive play by Delaney and Lauren allowed Megan, Anna, and Emily to keep the pressure on. Kelsey broke in from the left side after beating two defenders but the ball went just wide. Finally the horn sounded and the mighty contest ended 0-0.

Under 10-7 girls team faces tough opponent

The Wildcat Under 10-7 girls met a tough opponent on the field this past Saturday when they went up against a fast and tricky Concord-Carlisle team at the Carlisle fields.

Carlisle came out fast and strong and at the two minute mark of the first half scored their first of two goals to give them a 1-0 lead early in the game.

The Wildcat girls rebounded after a slow start to tie the score 1-1 on a goal by Michaela D'Ambrosio at the fourteen minute mark of the first half. Sabrina Mirabella rebounded beautifully from an early goal and held the Concord-Carlisle team off the board until Hannah Stebbins finished the first half in net.

Outstanding support in the backer position from Lauren Sullivan made it very difficult for the Concord-Carlisle team to muster much offensive might. The Wild Cat girls finished the half with a goal by Brett Duffy at the twenty-first minute giving the girls a 2-1 edge at half time.

The second half saw Michaela Hanson take over the netminding with Marissa Genovese scoring at the three minute mark of the second half posting the Wildcat girls to a 3-1 lead.

Outstanding defense by Ashley White and Janelle Heenan kept the Concord-Carlisle girls off balance until they scored at the ten minute mark of the second half. Hannah Judkins and Ryanne Newhouse would keep the offensive pressure on their opponents displaying the Wildcat determination throughout the second half. With excellent support in the backer position from Lauren Smith the Wildcat girls would post a tough fought 3-2 victory for the second win of the season.

The GU10-7 girls took on a tough fighting team from Reading for the opening day game at the Shawsheen Field this past Saturday and came out winners in a 6-0 score that did not reflect the Reading effort.

The game scoring started early when Lauren Smith scored the first of her three goals at the two minute mark. Smith would go on to score two goals toward the end of the game to give the Wildcats their first hat trick of the year.

Solid defense by the Reading team held the Wildcat girls off the board until the last few minutes of the half. Brett Duffy held the pressure on a tough Reading goalkeeper eventually getting the ball past her for a 2-0 Wilmington lead.

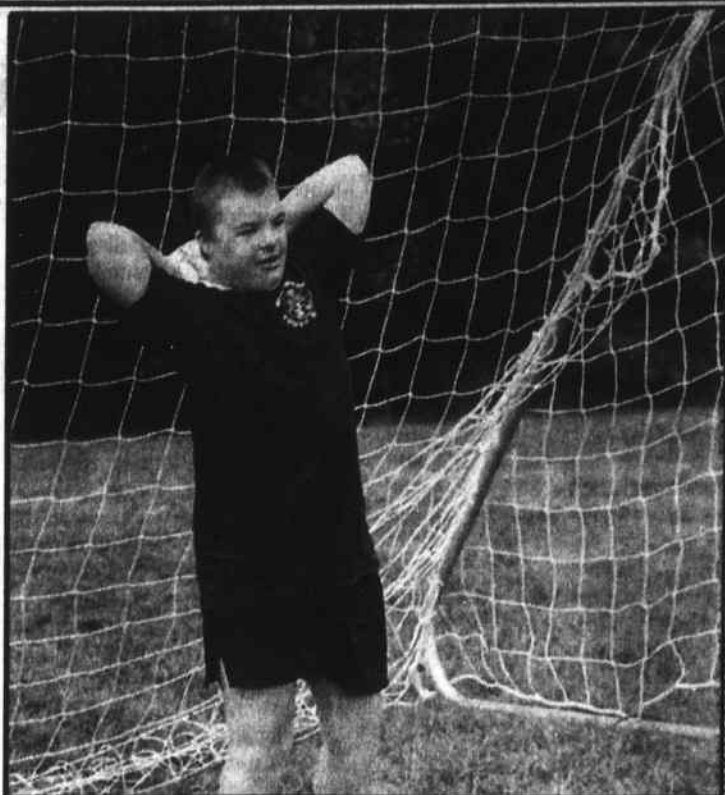

Solid efforts in the Wildcat goal by Sabrina Mirabella and Hannah Stebbins kept the Reading team at bay. Outstanding defensive play by Marissa Genovese and Lauren Sullivan helped press the Reading team by keeping the ball in the offensive end most of the first half.

Reading was not giving up easy and applied pressure to the Wilmington goal at the start of the second half only to be turned away by Michaela Hanson. At the two minute mark of the second half Michaela D'Ambrosio scored for the Wilmington girls. Ryanne Newhouse, and Janelle Heenan exchanged volleys with the Reading girls eventually breaking Ashley White free for the fourth Wilmington goal fighting the Reading backers all the way to goal.

Lauren Smith would add two goals late in the game to provide the Wildcat girls with their first hat trick of the season. Hannah Judkins had several near misses in the second half but the Reading girls proved determined to spar until the last seconds of play. Wilmington netted their first victory of the fall season 6-0 against the Reading team.

The Wildcats will be put to the test next week against the Concord-Carlisle team at Concord-Carlisle.

Girls Under 10B team takes on Reading Rockets

The GU10 B travel soccer team had their first game on the season this past weekend versus Reading. Rachel Grabar was our starting keeper along with Cara Kusa in her usual role as sweeper.

The Wildcats took advantage of an early goal scoring opportunity that would end up being the only score of the game. Taylor Cushing's well placed corner kick was brought down by Lexi Arsenault right in front of the Waltham net. Arsenault passed it up to forward Katie Blanch who kicked it into the corner of the goal. The girls were off to a quick 1-0 lead.

Wilmington pressed on with great hustle and determination from midfielders Victoria Beck and Cristina Wilson. Lauren Azevedo was in great position to keep the pressure on the opposing keeper.

Emily Schuh took over in goal during the second half and the Wildcats tried hard to expand their narrow lead. Grabar and Cushing teamed up on the forward line and fired off several shots at the Waltham keeper. Wilmington began to dominate the ball. Lisa Hitchins and Valerie Belding ruled the mid-field and helped support their forward line.

By the end of the match, Wilmington considerably out shot our opponent, but were unlucky, in adding to the final result. Their outstanding defense held strong and protected their early lead for the duration. Final score: Wilmington 1 and Reading -0.

Five town bike ride, September 26

On Sunday, September 28, this year's Five Community Bike Ride will be hosted by the North Shore Cyclists (NSC) and the Wakefield Bicycling Committee.

This event is sponsored by Pro Cycles of Wakefield, and will start at the Wakefield/Lynnfield Lodge of Elks at 63 Baystate Road, Wakefield. The ride goes through Wakefield, Lynnfield, No. Reading, Wilmington and Reading; the five towns that make up the North Suburban Regional Bicycle Transportation Plan (NSRBTP).

The purpose of this plan is to provide safe cycling routes through these towns, making connections to their transportation hubs as well as recreational areas.

Come on down to the Elks and enjoy one of two rides offered. The longer ride will be approximately 25 miles and encompass all five towns. The shorter ride of 20 miles will exclude Wilmington.

The rides will be arrowed and cue sheets will be provided. Pro Cycles and the NSC will provide the refreshments. Anyone not a member of the NSC will have to sign a waiver of liability, and a parent or guardian must accompany any person under 18.

The NSC strongly recommends that each rider wear a properly fitted bike helmet.

Squirt A's skate up against Redmen

The Wilmington Squirt A Wildcats squared off with arch rival Tewksbury Squirt A. The game was played at Hockey Town in Saugus MA. on Saturday September 13th and both teams came out flying.

The forward lines of Danny Creedon, John Hughson, Adam Martiniello, David Sugrue, Justin Ferreira, Domenic Dirupo, Jimmy O'Neill, Kevin Moriarty, David Siegal and Brian Callahan generated numerous quality scoring opportunities. Wilmington then got on the board first when Jimmy O'Neill found pay dirt when his shot found the back of the net giving the Cat's the early lead 1-0. Tewksbury later converted on a breakaway evening the

Mite A's are welcomed into the new season

Welcome to the Mite A's. Those were the first words from Coach Pickett.

Nobody knew what to expect from the Wilmington A team. Only a few returning starters were coming back and the rest of the ranks would be filled from the Mite B team and the buzzers program.

With games scheduled with cross town rivals and powerhouse teams such as Reading, players, coaches and aprnts were all nervous of what would happen. The weekend games can be summed up in two words: Jimmy Davey. The goaltender played superb between the pipes.

Although Wilmington lost 8-5 in game one, they played great hockey. Great defense was supplied by Dylan Dinatale, Zach Blanch and Zach Malatesti. The offense came from Brendan McDonough and a hat trick from Brian Pickett.

In game two, the coaching staff could see that the kids could do and made some adjustments. The action was back-and-forth with Wildcat goals from Brendan McDonough, Drew Foley and Brian Pickett. Daniel Luise played some great defense. He was helped out by teammates Mike Diorio, Brian Healy, Kevin Muese, Jay Rossetti, Tommy Townsend and Matt Diorio. The game went down to the wire with a score of 9-8 in favor of Reading.

ANTHONY MANCONI

Folks, I thank God for the many relatives and friends who allow me to mention them in my jokes, puns and quips, especially my Aunt Nora. Why is it that my nephew Dennis Tully can pitch a no-hit Little League baseball game in the morning and can't hit my front porch with the evening paper?

Sign on the Marine Corps training grounds in Quantico, Virginia: "If you can't LEAD and won't follow, get the heck out of the way!"...

Blacki Vega is so slow, it takes him an hour and a half to watch 60 minutes!...

I loved Andy Griffin's show and an expression he used, "Ah appreciate it." that saying and "Thank You" it seems to me are becoming rare commodities. A case in point, my friend Johnny Ave got up and gave his seat to a lady holding onto the overhead strap on the MBTA Blue Line. She sat down and fainted. When she came too, she said, "Thank you, Sir." And Johnny Ave fainted....

I asked George Gould, "What kind of name is GOULD?" George smiled and replied, "It's Irish with a little SCOTCH in it." Aunt Nora burst into a loud laugh saying, "I've never know you George, with just a LITTLE Scotch in you!"...

My favorite church hymns:

"Ave Maria," "Fanis Angelico," "Amazing Grace" and "Let there be Peace on Earth" and Let it begin with ME."...

My favorite General Omar Bradley said, "We have discovered the secret of the ATOM BUT have forgotten the sermon on the MOUNT."...

Lt LeSala dispatched Officer John Diagle to Malden Street to investigate a complaint that someone was playing a saxophone at three o'clock in the morning. Officer Diagle told the budding musician, "If you insist on playing that instrument, you will have to accompany me." "No problem, Sir," was the reply. "What song do you want to sing?"

I came home from the newspaper office and found a ransom note in my mailbox. It said, "Chipper. we have kidnapped your mother-in-law. Bring $500 by Thursday or we are bringing her BACK Saturday." I sent my note, "How about sending you FIVE dollars a week?"

tions. Kearns is a member of the Guild of Boston Artists, the North Shore Art Association, and the Rockport Art Association, where he is a past president. His gallery is located on Mt. Pleasant Street in Rockport.

The public is invited to Kearns to S-4

About the Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

IT'S ABOUT TIME

'Above and Beyond' in Reading

"The Education Foundation of the Massachusetts Software and Internet Council announced the winners of its annual Above and Beyond Awards," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The unique program recognizes and rewards outstanding math and science teachers in grades 6-8."

"A dozen middle school math and science teachers from across the state earned $1,000 grants for their schools. One of this year's winners was Natalie L. Petrillo, who teaches 7th and 8th grade math at Austin Preparatory School. Ms. Petrillo is a resident of Reading."

"Petrillo was nominated for the Above and Beyond Award by a colleague, Patricia Ward. 'Ms. Petrillo, a first year teacher from the high tech field, has impressed me with her ability to creatively engage her students in real-world projects involving higher order thinking skills and technology,' said Ward. 'She is eager to learn from others and seamlessly incorporates suggestions into her teaching style.'" future studies and in the workplace, they will need to be technically competent and have the ability to work well in teams. Her Fast or Fat Food Project is designed to use three different technologies and incorporate various learning styles. First, students use advanced web search techniques to research fast food restaurants of their choice; second, all data is put in an Excel spreadsheet, where students perform calculations using formulas, formatting and new fonts; and third, students learn how to create a brochure using Microsoft Word...."

"Margaret McKenna, President of Lesley University, and David Blohm, President of the Education Foundation, presented this year's Above and Beyond Awards."

Not soon enough in North Reading

"The School Committee will be looking for $120,000 in capital spending requests at the October Town Meeting to be targeted at just two areas: technology and furniture replacement," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"The committee discussed the need for nearly $200,000 in capital projects, including a new truck for the school department and replacement photocopiers. But these were downgraded to lower priorities in view of the town's financial constraints."

"Trying to keep up with the demands of ever-improving technology and evolving state standards is daunting as well as expensive. As a result, the committee will request $100,000 in capital spending, which usually means bonding over several years, to enhance school technology system-wide."

"Computers for classroom use are divided into three categories; A, B, or C, depending on how much memory they have and the speed of their processor and whether they have internet capability.

"Business Manager Carl Nelson said the high school is 'just meeting' the state standards of one A or B computer for every five students, according to a technology study taken at the end of the school year. But enrollment has increased substantially at the high school this September so that benchmark will slip."

"The other schools don't fare as well in the summary. At the Middle School, the ratio is 10 students to every A or B computer. The Little School ratio is 8 to 1, the Batchelder 6.2 and the Hood 6.1."

"We are in the process of examining where we stand as a result of that analysis and

Here and now in Stoneham

"Just as Cooperstown recognizes baseball's greats and Springfield pays homage to the best in basketball, Stoneham now has an official vehicle through which it recognizes the finest examples of talent and dedication in local athletic pursuits," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Moynihan had the pleasure of announcing the first inductees into the Stoneham High School Athletic Hall of Fame. This is the inaugural year for the Hall of Fame, which came to fruition through the dogged persistence and hard work on the part of a dedicated group of committee members."

"Stoneham High School has a proud and distinguished heritage of athletic achievement. In recognition of that, the Stoneham School Committee established an athletic Hall of Fame in order to recognize those individuals whose integrity, sportsmanship and character have enhanced the overall educational experience of our youth," Moynihan said last November when he announced the opening of nominations for formal recognition of well deserving individuals or teams who have made their mark on Stoneham High School.

"The first inductees of the Stoneham High School Athletic Hall of Fame exemplify all of the above traits and more, including versatility, for many have excelled in a number of areas and have successfully gone on to keep that winning drive a part of their lives."

"When it comes to running at Stoneham High, no name stands above that of Kristen Seabury. The SHS 1987 graduate, now Kristen Till, dominated the Middlesex League like no one before or since."

Her name can still be found all over the record board that hangs inside the Stoneham gym foyer.

"Now married with a four-month-old child and living in Baltimore, Kristen went on to excel at the University of Alabama but is quick to credit much of her success to her beginnings at Stoneham High."

"I ran a little before I came to Stoneham High, but it seems like that's where I really started. I had great influences like Mr. Rocher and Mr. Fillback. The thing I enjoyed was being part of a team, even though it's sort of an individual sport. I really enjoyed my teammates and having fun...."

"The banquet to celebrate the Stoneham High School Athletic Hall of Fame inaugural year and the first inductees was scheduled for October 25, 2003 at the Montvale Plaza."

Boating & You

Things to know before you go

by Tom Lucet

Fresh water boating or "step-up to salt water cruising? That is the question my next door neighbors recently asked me."

"Rickie, you, your wife and your grown-up kids have always gone boating every summer on a lake near your family camp in Maine," I remarked "Perhaps your family has felt safer cruising where you can see land all around you," I stated.

But their family and mine only live an eighth of a mile from the Atlantic Ocean. After I educated him on the necessary steps to make the transition I thought I'd pass them on to you, my boating readers.

Check with your local Harbor Master's office for an available mooring area; call your local assessor's office at city hall for the cost of a mooring fee. Step three is to visit a local marine store for the cost of mooring materials: mushroom anchor or cement block, pick-up buoy and winter spar.

Then I mentioned to Rickie "You should also explore the possibility of using a marina or joining a yacht club. Call them for a membership application. Do it today, as new members on the list may have to wait even months for openings!"

Thank you all for the many interesting letters I've received—all contain great questions and inquiries.

"How much line should I let out when I want to stay overnight off Great Misery Island near Cape Ann?" (Answer: under normal conditions seven to eight feet in length for each foot in depth.)

My 10-year-old son would love to "skipper" his dad's 17 1/2' aluminum bow-rider powered by a 55 hp outboard." (Answer: young people under 16 years old are required to take and pass at least a U.S.C.G. Auxiliary or U.S. Power Squadron course; required when motor is greater than 5 hp.)

"I would like to know what you recommend to use to carry lots of gear from the car to the yacht club and back again?" (Answer: I recently saw a foldable, economically priced dolly advertised on TV—perfect for your needs! Call or see your local marine store for stock availability.)

Attention boaters, you could be one of the many great prizes being awarded by the Weems and Plath Co., Annapolis, Ind. They're celebrating their 75th Anniversary with a contest entitled "Adventure in Navigation starting Tuesdays on September 16th for nine weeks. Log on their Web site and answer some E-Z questions. Register today on www.WEAMS/PLATH.com.

"Keep those cards and letters coming." Mail to: Editor Middlesex East, P.O. Box 240, Reading MA 01867.

Cholesterol heart to heart

(EDITOR'S NOTE: We are reprinting the following story because it did not appear in its entirety in last week's Middlesex East)

True or false? The only real way to keep your blood cholesterol in check is to avoid foods high in cholesterol. Contrary to popular belief, the answer is false.

Cholesterol is one of the most misunderstood health issues despite the fact that more than 50 percent of Americans are affected, including people in their 20s. Although people are more aware today of the risks posed by excessive cholesterol, many don't realize what it takes to prevent levels from skyrocketing.

Here are some heart-to-heart tips for fighting cholesterol:

Finding the way Recover from depression

Diagnosed with depression at the age of 35, Candace (to protect her privacy, only her first name is used) thought she was on the road to recovery. After months of taking an antidepressant prescribed by her family doctor, Candace was beginning to enjoy hobbies again. She also noticed that she wasn't crying as much anymore. Yet she still had aches and pains and often an upset stomach that wouldn't go away. Candace was surprised to learn that these physical symptoms were linked to her depression. Her doctor told her that her aches and pains, as well as stomach problems, were preventing her from getting completely well and increasing her chances of getting depressed again.

Unfortunately, she is not alone. As many as 70 percent of depressed patients that visit their family doctor have physical symptoms. Recently, several depression experts gathered to talk about why so many patients with depression do not get completely better.

Defining Recovery
Successful recovery means something different to each patient. For example, some patients may think they are fully recovered when they are able to stop crying frequently or return to work and pay their bills. Other patients may feel that they have recovered when they can maintain close relationships with their loved ones.

The patient and doctor should form a partnership and discuss goals of treatment, said Dr. Stephen Stahl, a psychiatrist at the University of California at San Diego.

Painful physical symptoms of depression, such as an upset stomach or back pain, can linger even after the emotional symptoms have disappeared, which makes a complete recovery harder to achieve.

"New research has shown us that patients have the best chances of recovery if both their emotional and physical symptoms are treated," Stahl said, "many people don't realize that depression is more than just sadness and when we don't treat it as a whole body illness, the results won't be as good."

More Than Sadness
Mary Guardino, executive director of Freedom From Fear, a national mental health advocacy organization, noted that depression is a disease that comes and goes.

"Sometimes the physical symptoms mask the emotional symptoms. Other times, the emotional symptoms may be more troublesome," she said. "While the physical and emotional symptoms of depression are connected, the good news is that they can both be treated."

Current medical research on depression suggests that by increasing the levels of serotonin and norepinephrine simultaneously, the impact of both emotional and physical symptoms of depression on patients may be lessened.

"The goal for recovery should be to treat and improve the full range of symptoms," Stahl said. "Depression is a treatable illness. If your medication isn't helping you get better, talk to your health care provider about other options that can get you completely well."

• Check your risk. Anyone over 20 should check levels at least once every five years, especially if there is a family history of high cholesterol and heart disease.

• Eat right. Consume fewer saturated fats and smaller portions of food with added trans-fats. Trans-fats come from partially hydrogenated vegetable oils often found in fried and processed foods.

• Eat more fiber. Studies reveal soy, beans and nuts added to your diet can lower cholesterol by up to 5 percent.

• Exercise. Working out can kick your diet into gear and knock down your cholesterol.

• Explore supplements. Many Americans depend on cholesterol-fighting supplements like Policosanol Advantage, which is derived from the waxy coating of sugar cane leaves and stems.

"Today people are examining natural options when it comes to treating and preventing high cholesterol," states Bernd Wollschlaeger, a family physician in Miami, "Policosanol supplements, like Policosanol Advantage, are being widely embraced as a viable cholesterol management tool."

Sugar cane-derived policosanol has been used for over a decade in more than 30 countries around the world.

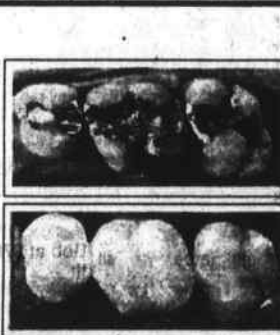

Natural supplements such as Policosanol Advantage help inhibit the production of cholesterol and help maintain normal blood levels of cholesterol.

Contest winners from S-1

Middlesex East General Manager Dick Haggerty. "The sheer numbers topped by 25% our last and most successful contest in 1999" he added.

And with the numbers came quality. Six judges evaluated each and every photo submitted to arrive at the eventual winners.

Eight photos fell into the category of honorable mention in both Overall and Junior competition and these photos appear on the back of today's section in full 4 color. (One exception was the black and white photo of an old Ford automobile).

Endless hours were spent looking at the photos with three primary areas considered to advance to the finals. They were:

1. Overall picture quality
2. Photo composition
3. Originality of photo.

Almost 100 photos advanced to the finals from which the winners were selected.

The photos reproduced on today's pages may not reflect the true quality of the winning photos as size limitations and quality of newsprint versus high gloss photograph paper can have a lessening affect.

"We at Middlesex East would like to thank each and every person who took the time and effort to submit an entry" said GM Haggerty. "It was a complete pleasure for each and every judge to view and select the winners. The entries were incredible", he concluded.

In a separate story in today's issue entrants can find information on how to claim their photos. Winners instructions are also in that related story.

Entrants may come to the following locations to claim their photos and prizes. There were over 650 entries in the contest so please have patience with the return process.

If your photo is not at the designated site please call 781-944-2200 and we will take further steps to find your photo.

Some of the entrants did not state which community they were from on the back of photos so it is impossible to return them and they have been saved in a "miscellaneous" folder at the 531 Main St., Reading location.

The list is as follows:
Woburn, Winchester and Burlington entries can be claimed at the Daily Times

Chronicle front office at One Arrow Drive in Woburn.

Reading and Wakefield photos are at the Reading address at 531 Main St., Reading.

North Reading and Lynnfield photos are at the North Reading Transcript office at 7 Bow St., North Reading.

Stoneham entries are the Stoneham Independent office at 377 Main Street in Stoneham square.

Wilmington and Tewksbury entries are at the Town Crier office on route 129 at 104 Lowell Street in Wilmington.

As stated prior to the contest we cannot 100% guarantee they will be at these locations but every effort has been made to safeguard the originals.

All other entries are at the 531 Main St., Reading address.

ATTENTION WINNERS

The prizes for winners are $100.00 for first place overall, $75.00 for second place, $50.00 for third place and $75.00 for overall Junior winner. Checks will be mailed by Friday, September 19, 2003.

ATTENTION HONORABLE MENTION WINNERS

Honorable Mention winners will receive a handy pocket knife and a coffee travel mug and they can be claimed along with their photos at the 531 Main St., Reading office of Middlesex East.

How to avoid a fire

(MS) — During the summer of 2002, wildfires made the front pages daily. However, less spectacular fires occur all year long — over one and a half million house fires in 2000 alone, according to the National Fire Protection Association. Many were the result of kitchen mishaps, faulty electrical wiring, or simple carelessness. Fortunately, there are ways to reduce the likelihood that fire will strike your home.

"There are easy steps that everyone can take to prevent, and survive, a home fire," said Dan Liparini, Vice President of Underwriting for MetLife Auto & Home. "Just by asking three simple questions, homeowners can prevent a loss of life or property."

These questions are:

- Do I have working smoke detectors installed in my home?
- Have I developed and practiced a home escape plan?
- Have I checked the house for any "accidents waiting to happen"?

"If you answered no to any of these questions, or you don't know the answer, it's time to take action to make your home safer from fire," says Liparini. "Smoke alarms and an escape plan are critical, but don't forget to put fresh batteries in the smoke detectors and to practice the escape plan with your family. It's also important to eliminate hazards in your household: easy things like checking that the cords on your electrical devices aren't frayed, that no more than two appliances are plugged into one outlet, that space heaters aren't too near flammable materials, that the hood above the stove is cleaned of build-up, and that flammable liquids are stored outside the home in a properly-ventilated shed."

To help consumers get the answers they need on the subject of fire safety, MetLife Auto & Home is offering a free 16-page brochure that provides a comprehensive look at fire safety protection, entitled "About: Fire Safety."

The brochure is part of the award-winning Life Advice series, and provides useful information on a number of fire-related subjects, including how to plan an escape route, seasonal safety tips, and safety information related to heating your home. The brochure is available free by calling (800) MET-LIFE (638-6433).

To secure more information about the wide variety of insurance products MetLife Auto & Home provides, contact your local MetLife Auto & Home provider or authorized Independent Agent, or visit MetLife's Web site at www.metlife.com. FH02973
